Woman Suffering Loss Of Memory Taken To Farmington Tuesday

An unidentified young woman who wandered into Dr. U. P. Haw's office in Benton Saturday was taken to the state hospital at Farmington Tuesday for treatment after repeated questioning failed to reveal information about her. She was believed suffering from amnesia.

In a room at the Benton courthouse where she was allowed to stay, the woman repeated several times the first names of people, evidently acquaintances, but she could not remember her own name. Frequently she said, "I didn't do anything. Why do you do me like this? I knew you were going to frame me." Assurance that she would not be harmed failed to quiet her. At times she cried, but ordinarily her face was expressionless. She refused to exercise, but only leaned against a wall of the room for a long time while she was questioned. She said she received $4.10 for picking cotton, but could not recall the places she had been.

The woman was let out of a northbound automobile at a Benton filling station by people who said they had given her a ride from near Sikeston while it was raining. Several times she had tried to get from the car while it was moving, they said.

She was well-dressed and appeared to be about 28 years old.

25 Attend District Meet of I. O. O. F. in Dexter

Twenty-five members of the Sikeston I. O. O. F. chapter went to Dexter last night to attend a district of Southeast Missouri lodges. Thirty-one groups of six districts were represented.

Ben Weidel, secretary of the St. Louis grand lodge, was the principal speaker. Members of the Sikeston degree staff, headed by E. H. Smith, conferred degrees on candidates, including Vernon Kelly and Theodore Kelly of Sikeston.

Other members of the lodge who attended were C. C. White, Wagner, W. J. Bennett, Norman Bennett, Harry Mason, Elza Lepley, Milburn Taylor, C. W. Smoot, William Vinson, Walter Hughes, Orville Calhoun, R. S. Coleman, W. F. Beasley, Charles Bethune, Frank Fettingler, Edward Swan, J. W. Whitwell, William Warren, A. M. Jackson, Hardy Williams, Franklin Sneed, and Arthur Odell.

Bulldogs To Play Red Devils Here Tonight

The Bulldogs will probably meet a team more difficult to overcome than the Matthews Pirates when the Chaffee Red Devils come here tonight (Friday) for a game on the athletic field.

The Red Devils have won only one match this year, defeating Kennett 39 to 0 and losing to Jackson, Dexter, Charleston, and Perryville. Compared with the Matthews defeat by the Blue Jays of 27 to 0, Chaffee's defeat by the same opponents 19 to 6 indicates that it is a stronger team than the New Madrid county squad.

Coach W. E. Mahew and Coach Zahn Wells of Chaffee were both trained at the Murray State college at Murray, Ky.

The Red Devils' average weight of 155 is ten pounds higher than the Bulldogs'. Coach Wells' probable starting lineup will consist of Aubuchon, quarterback, 160 pounds; Bienert, fullback, 135; Billis, right end, 162; Brockmeyer, left tackle, 150; Johnstone, center, 130; K. Brazeal, halfback, 145; Briggs, left guard, 189; Mouser, right tackle, 172; Papin, left end, 125; Standfield, halfback, 156; and Shuley, right guard, 145.

The game, the last of the home matches until the Blue Jays come here on Thanksgiving, will start at 7:30. Admission will be 25 cents.

Little River Drainage Dis- trict to File Tax Suits

Cape Girardeau, Oct. 24.—The agreement made between the Board of Supervisors of The Little River Drainage District and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, when the latter loaned the district funds with which to retire its outstanding bonds, made it definitely imperative that the district collect its drainage tax assessments, district officials said today in announcing that suits on delinquent taxes are to be filed and prosecuted.

There has been surrendered bonds valued at $7,771,000, or 97 per cent of the outstanding bonded indebtedness of the district. Under the resolutions of the RFC the bondholders will eventually receive $297 on each bond of $1000 value. This arrangement has met with good response, but as yet there are left bonds amounting to $69,000, owners of which are unknown, $26,000, in estates and not immediately available, and only $136,000 in bonds whose owners have been informed of the plan, but who have not availed themselves of the RFC offer.

As the money loaned to the district by the RFC must be paid back, together with interest, it is incumbent on the district to collect its drainage assessments, it was pointed out, and while the payment of taxes for the year 1934 and delinquent assessments for 1935 and prior, as adjusted, were quite satisfactory, this does not relieve the district from undertaking to enforce collections on all unpaid assessments.

There has been prepared for filing in the various circuit courts in the counties served by the drainage district and in the Court of Common Pleas at Cape Girardeau, approximately 1000 suits for delinquent taxes. These suits, district officials said, will be prosecuted to conclusion at the earliest possible date.

Although these suits are being filed the privilege of paying delinquent assessments on adjusted rates offered to landowners still remains. Any such settlement, however, made after the filing of the suits will have added to it such costs and attorneys fees as are accrued.

The assessment for 1935 is on the same basis as for 1934. The same plan of payment on cleared and timbered lands will prevail. The assessment on land classed as cleared land will be paid on the basis of benefits assessed and on that classed as timbered land at the rate of 10 cents per acre.

An article printed elsewhere by Harry Zimmerman, a psychologist and character analyst, says "Human happiness must be built into the human skull." We are not one of those things that he is, but we believe human happiness must be built within the human heart. It is the heart that governs the impulse of human beings and that within the skull is what directs these impulses. It is the heart that beats for those in distress, that gives you the signal of what is right and what is wrong. The soul of man is within the heart. It is the heart that responds and not the head. We have known people that had little in their heart and less in their skulls.

Marshall Gunter, an old offender, was given a fine by Judge Carter for being drunk and disorderly, with orders to be put on the street to work out his fine if it was not paid. Gunter refused to pay the fine or work it out. Then along comes Mayor Presnell and pardons him. If it had been a first offense and he had been puny, as the judge put it, perhaps it would have been all right, but he has been arrested often and if he was been sitting on his, and like cases, he would have paid the fine, worked it out, or been given nothing but bread and water until he was willing to perform. And if any one attempted to pass him food, they would have been thrown into the bowels of the bat cave along with the prisoners.

LITTLE RIVER FILES 1000 SUITS FOR BACK TAXES

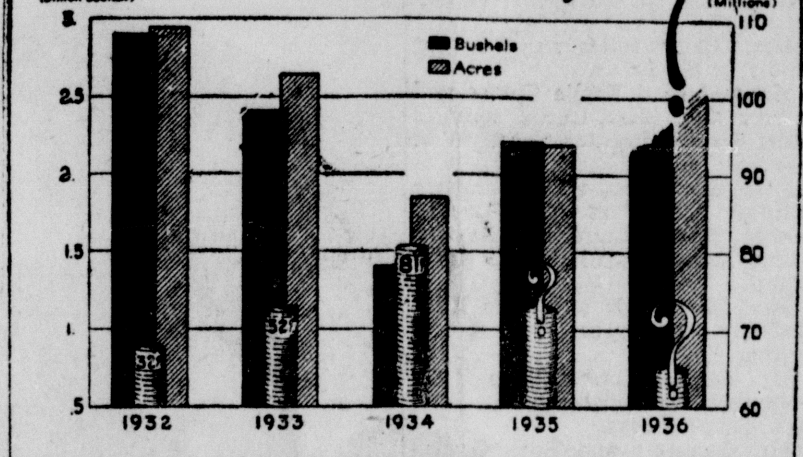

A thousand suits to collect delinquent drainage taxes due to the Little River drainage district are being filed in Southeast Missouri courts of counties in which the district's ditches are located, it was announced this week.

The Action is being taken because the district must collect delinquent tax money in order to pay its debt to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation on a loan granted some time ago to retire outstanding bonds. The district's agreement with the RFC left it responsible for collecting assessments.

Suits are for payment of delinquent assessments of 1933 and before.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph L. McGee of Matthews announce the birth Tuesday of a daughter whom they have named Jacqueline Sue.

Will Large Corn Supplies Mean Low Prices Again

ACREAGE planted has the most influence on corn production, except when a nation-wide drought reduces yield as in 1934. The effect of total production on the average farm price of corn will be felt as new corn becomes available this fall. The pile of coins representing farm price for the 1935 crop will be smaller than in 1934. Under normal weather conditions, acreage planted to corn in 1936 will determine total production and be a major influence on the price of corn in 1936 and 1937. In 1932 and 1933 an average of 106 million acres of corn were harvested. Average yields on an acreage of this size in 1936 will mean a corn harvest next year of nearly 2 1/2 billion bushels.

ENGINEERS GATHER DATA FOR MALONE PAVING JOB

Highway department engineers are this week gathering information concerning the typography and drainage of Malone avenue for use in detailed plans for the widening project which will be undertaken this winter with WPA funds.

According to specifications, the avenue will be widened ten feet from between Prairie street and the Frisco tracks. Concrete paving work will be done by WPA laborers under the supervision of highway engineers.

A contract for the project will probably be let within a few months so that widening may be completed by early spring.

CHAMBER CONSIDERS PUBLISHING DIRECTORY

Junior Chamber of Commerce members discussed the possibility of sponsoring publication of a new city directory when they met at dinner Tuesday.

The undertaking is considered a commendable one since no directory has been printed since the 1931 issue, which is now badly out-dated.

The chamber will also ask the cooperation of the city and the state highway department in having a stop sign erected on Tanner at North Kingshighway and a slow and S curve sign on North New Madrid near the Methodist church.

PARMA APPROVES BOND ISSUE FOR WATERWORKS

Approval of a large bond issue to help finance construction of a $38,000 waterworks system at Parma was given by voters at a special election held Tuesday. Two hundred and eighty-eight balloted for the issue and only twenty-five against it. The government has already approved granting $17,000 and lending $21,000 for the work. On Saturday Parma residents approved a bond issue for construction of a new $26,000 high school building with federal aid. The project has not yet been formally passed in Washington.

Great Harpist To Play at Auditorium Tonight

Alberto Salvi, who is to play here tonight (Thursday) with an instrumental quartet, has risen steadily since he took his first informal lesson on the harp, which he later mastered so well that he has often been called the world's greatest living harpist.

Salvi received his first instruction on a diminutive harp made especially for him by his father, a noted harp maker of Venice, Italy. Advancing rapidly, he won the Royal scholarship prize, which assured him that all his future training would be secured at the expense of the Italian government. When he graduated with the highest honors, he was three years ahead of his class, and progressing still further, he composed, directed, and concertized until his name became synonymous with the beauties of the modern harp.

One writer has said of Salvi: "There are harpists and harpists but there is only one Alberto Salvi, who is admittedly the most phenomenal virtuoso of them all—an artist whose remarkable performance on the instrument of romance is a sensation everywhere. Salvi has modernized the harp and brought it to a higher place of art; he extracts unexpected tones from it and offers a new vista of its possibilities. These qualifications, together with the surprising effect he achieves—full volume, ethereal pianissimo, and astounding variety—make all his appearances triumphs and re-engagements the rule."

"He has brought the harp to life. He has restored to supremacy the oldest of stringed instruments, the one that should reign over them all. And if, from his devotion the musical public understand the harp as it does the violin or the piano, life will owe him a debt that can never be repaid."

Salvi will play in the high school auditorium at 8 o'clock tonight (Thursday). With him will be four talented young men: Oscar Hansow, who plays the violin; Harold Newton, the viola; Ernest Gutermann, the flute; and Alfredo Mazzari, the cello.

Admission to the performance will be 40 cents.

BERTRAND COMMUNITY TO VOTE ON BOND ISSUE

No definite date has yet been set for a special election at which residents will vote on a proposed $11,000 bond issue for construction of a new consolidated school at Bertrand, John R. Gaty, a director of the new consolidated district, said Thursday morning.

Directors plan to send out election notices this week-end. The election will be held fifteen days after notices are received.

The Bertrand, Bement, and Arner schools were consolidated by residents who voted two-to-one for the change at a meeting October 15. A WPA project for building a new school building 100 feet square has been approved in Washington. The building will be constructed if the bond issue, which represents the sponsor's share of the undertaking, is endorsed by the community.

Louis Kem and daughter, M. and Mrs. John Crosno and daughters, and Mrs. Owen Johnson and children were Sikeston shoppers Saturday afternoon.

One Hurt In Accident Brought Home, Two Remain In Hospital

Mrs. Mildred Blake, known as Mildred Waters was brought here in the Albritton ambulance Tuesday afternoon from the St. Francis hospital in Cape Girardeau and taken to the home of her mother, Mrs. J. F. Waters, on Gladys street, where she is now recovering from bruises and a back injury sustained when the car she was driving north on Highway 61 left the road at a curve near Steele.

Mrs. Blake's companions, Miss Muriel Hurt and Miss Pat Murphy, will be confined in the hospital longer, Miss Hurt for an indefinite time.

Miss Hurt, the most severely injured, underwent an operation at 8 o'clock Monday night for a broken vertebra, which left her body paralyzed from the waist down. She was reported resting Tuesday, but by then the condition of her legs was unchanged and surgeons were uncertain whether she would ever fully recover.

In addition, Miss Hurt suffered deep lacerations on her body. Twenty-seven stitches were required to close cuts on her face.

The skin on her nose and upper lip was split open and although her eyes were unimpaired, deep cuts surrounded them. Her teeth were knocked loose and she incurred a painful gash on the back of her head. Her body will be kept in a cast for many weeks.

Miss Murphy may be brought home within a week. She is receiving treatment for a broken shoulder, a broken collarbone, broken ribs, a possible broken jawbone, a severe cut on her left foot and lesser lacerations on her right hand and left cheek, blackened eyes, and bruises over her entire body.

Miss Hurt is a daughter of Mrs. Clara Hurt, who on September 23 was bound over to the Butler county circuit court after a preliminary hearing on perjury charges, filed when she refused to testify as expected at the hit-and-run driving murder trial of Arthur Jones in Poplar Bluff last summer. Miss Murphy is an adopted daughter of Mrs. Hurt.

Mrs. Blake's Plymouth coupe in which the three were riding Sunday was brought here the first of the week. It was damaged beyond repair.

Advocates Construction of Safe Automobiles

"Motoring safety, very much on the public mind, can be attained only in one way—the building of the safest possible cars by the manufacturer and the temperate use of their power and speed by the motorist."

This was the statement today of C. L. McCuen, Oldsmobile president and general manager, in discussing the important problem of traffic safety.

"The mere passage of laws is not the answer to the problems which concern us all so deeply," he said. "There must be a full measure of cooperation on the part of the man who makes the modern motor car and the man who drives it."

"The manufacturer must build into his product those important and proved safety devices which will aid a motorist in avoiding an accident. He must have brakes strong enough and sure enough to stop his car in the shortest possible time. He must enclose the passengers in his car in walls of steel, above, below and on all sides of them. He should add the further protection of safety glass. He must make his car easy to steer, easy to manipulate in any emergency."

"And the motorist must take full advantage of these safety devices. More than that, he should drive at all times with extreme caution, traveling at slower speeds at night than he does in the daytime."

"He must know what to do on all kinds of roads and in all kinds of traffic. He should realize that pedestrians cannot move as quickly as he is moving, and therefore should anticipate situations which might cause trouble."

"There are certain definite precautions, familiar to most motorists, to take when driving on icy streets, on gravel roads, in snow and sleet and rain. Periodical checking of brakes, tires, lights, horns, windshield wipers and steering apparatus should be made by every motorist. A defect in any of these might well cause an accident."

"No motorist deliberately invites an accident. But by failure to keep his car in condition, to abide by the traffic regulations of the state and city in which he lives, by forgetting for a brief moment his caution, he may well extend just such an invitation."

"The manufacturer is trying to do his part. Special engineers are assigned to test cars for their safety, to devise new ways to give added protection to the people who drive them."

"Each year finds more rigid frames, greater over all strength, more powerful and quicker acting brakes—a hundred and one things which mean additional safety to the men and women driving on the country's highways today."

"Through the cooperation of both the manufacturers and the drivers, the accident toll on the highways can be sharply diminished. It surely is worth the effort."

Kelso Tire Store Opens Offers New Credit Plan

A credit plan new to residents is being introduced at the Kelso Tire Store, which opened at 219 East Malone avenue Thursday morning.

Under the Kelso time payment plan, persons may buy merchandise without down payments and then apply money on their accounts as they are able. The plan is in effect for purchasers of tires, batteries, automobile heaters and radios, and accessories.

The "simple, easy plan," according to Kelso officials, "does away with complicated snoopy and credit investigations. You don't have to wait for a lot of double-checking. We believe you will agree with us and our customers that it is the easiest, simplest, most pleasant way you ever heard of to buy on time."

Since earlier in the week, workmen have been busy converting the Malone avenue room into quarters suitable for the Kelso Tire Store, constructing a partition, shelves and display racks.

The store, a branch of the Kelso Oil Company of Cape Girardeau, is equipped to carry a large complete stock. It will be managed by Elmer Deneke, who has long been a Kelso employee in Cape Girardeau. Mr. Deneke and his family will live here.

MANY TO HEAR CCC HEAD SPEAK IN CAPE MONDAY

Washington Current Comment

The quiet days of Autumn have settled on Washington, but the Capital City rests amid a stillness that cannot be charged to the weather or the season of the year. The average resident of Washington sees the President seldom, yet the White House is just a building if it is known that the Chief Executive is not under its roof. Few places are more dismal than the halls of Congress when they no longer echo the rap of the presiding officer's gavel. Washington at present is merely a large and well ordered city, and is deprived of its usual prerogative of having something unusual to tell the world. To be sure, the Department of State is busy, and worried over problems arising out of the African War, the Treasury issues its reports, footed up in debits and credits so large as to be without meaning to the ordinary reader, and the NRA still groggy from the blow administered by the Supreme Court is occupied in finding some way in which it can be of use. That being granted, the oven nevertheless is cold and the dough lacks the quickening leaven of politics. Politicians come in for some hard words, yet all will agree that without their presence there exists an aching void. Secretly if not openly, everyone enjoys the excitement that goes with party contention.

The Republic of Panama has notified a New York bank that it will have to be excused for the time being from paying some money that it owes. One of the difficulties that face an organization of public international scope, such as the League of Nations or the World Court, is to find a common bond that will hold it together. Indebtedness to the United States should be a tie strong enough to answer that purpose, and perhaps Panama has qualified for a new and higher seat in the international conferences. On Main Street, the butcher, the baker and the candle-stick maker turn a cold and glassy eye on the village dead-beat, but such conduct is small and provincial. It seems that there has been established a new Order of the Golden Fleece, having honors to be conferred on anyone able to fleece Uncle Sam.

No Rattle Provided For The Baby Rattlesnakes

Strange as it may seem, the baby rattlesnake has no rattle. Biologists of the United States Department of Agriculture say the young rattler has a button on the end of its tail at birth. Within a few days it sheds its skin, and then the first ring of the rattle appears. Shortly after these snakes are born the last 7 or 8 vertebrae fuse into a solid bone, the "shaker", around which the rings of the rattle form. When a rattler sheds, all the skin comes off entire, wrong side out—all except the part that covers the cap on the tail, which cannot come off because of the shape. This part of the skin however, is dislodged and moves backward to become an additional ring on the rattle. The rattling noise is made by these rings of dry skin jiggling around when the snake vibrates his shaker. The biologists say a snake seldom has more than 10 rings because the vibration at the tip is so great that the terminal rings wear out or are broken off.

Biologists do not believe lot of the notions about snakes. They say a rattler's years are not the same as the number of rings he has accumulated on his shaker. Normally one ring is added every time the skin is shed, and this is usually three times a year. But not all snakes are like in shedding. Some shed twice a year and some as many as four times.

Another thing, the biologists don't believe nature gave the rattlesnake his rattle as a warning device. They believe it is a call of use to them particularly in the breeding season. Anyway, it is an effective warning and saves the rattlers a lot of bother.

Wood Experts Drive Home Points About Using Nails

Valuable "tips" on the art of nailing woods together come from experts of the Forest Products Laboratory, Madison, Wis., according to the United States Forest Service, which maintains the laboratory in cooperation with the University of Wisconsin. Good nailing, they say, consists largely in selecting the right kind, size, and number of nails and then using them properly.

Some points in the technique of good nailing are: Strength of a nailed joint depends on the frictional contact of the nail with the wood fibers. Nailed joints must resist two types of pressure. The first is direct, tending to withdraw the nails; the other lateral, or sidewise. A nail's resistance to the latter pressure is greater, and depends upon the diameter of the nail and the kind of wood used. Tables have been made up showing the exact increase of resistance to lateral pressure provided by nails of various diameters.

A nail is long enough if about two-thirds of it goes into the board receiving the point. Splitting can be avoided by using a thin, blunt nail, or by blunting the end of a sharp nail and by boring a lead hole into the wood. The strength of nailed woods increases directly with the number of nails used. Good joints cannot be made with green woods that later dry out. Nails are more efficient when driven into the side grain of dry wood, than when driven into the end grain.

Tests show that the resistance of nails to withdrawal depends approximately on the area of contact with the wood. Resistance against withdrawal, point out the wood experts, depends on the surface condition of the nail. For temporary service, cement-coated nails give about 25 to 100 percent more holding power, but this effectiveness falls off in time. More permanent is the grip of those nails which have a pitted or etched surface.

TENANT FARMER KILLED BY UNKNOWN ASSAILANT

Ora D. Niswanger, 53-year-old tenant farmer of the Pinhook community in Mississippi county, was shot and killed instantly Monday night when an unknown attacker fired at him while he was eating dinner in his tent home.

Mrs. Niswanger, who was outside at the time caring for some chickens she had penned up for the night, rushed into the tent when she heard the shot. There she found her husband slumped over the table at which he was sitting, the left side of his face and his throat torn away. Officers said the shotgun had been pushed through a hole in the tent and fired at Niswanger's face.

Officers were unable to learn immediately a motive for the murder. A negro and another white man live near the couple, the negro in a tent 100 yards from the Niswangers' and the other, an uncle of Mrs. Niswanger, in a small house also near the tent.

The four lived on the Bill Knapp farm seven miles southeast of East Prairie.

Decorative Plaster

If you are building a new house or remodeling an old one, investigate the possibilities of decorative plaster over mantels.

Often a picture over the fireplace will overbalance the wall. An attractive design in relief left the same color as the remainder of the walls, will add interest to the space above the fireplace, but will not overemphasize it.

Many attractive designs are executed for this purpose. Among the interesting subjects used in a modern room was a relief map of the state in which the house was located.

Kitchen Closet

Add an appliance closet in the kitchen. Here all the smaller mechanical equipment—mixers, toasters, waffle irons, etc.—may be placed on shelves designed to accommodate them. On the door place a row of hooks and paste white labels above each one. The electric cords which fit each appliance may be hung there and the name of the appliance placed above it. This will prevent cords from becoming tangled, and they will be easy to locate.

Paint the interior of the closet a color which contrasts with the main kitchen wall color.

Selections of Trees

In selecting trees for planting about a residence, take care that those chosen combine the greatest natural beauty with a hardiness and freedom from disease and insects pests in the location where they are to be planted.

The form of the tree should be appropriate for the position it is to occupy.

Native trees are usually advisable for the reason that they are known to flourish under the soil and climatic conditions of the region.

Prevent Heat Loss

In western-framed houses the studs are not stopped at each floor but run up through the full height of the house. If these spaces are open either to an unprotected attic or basement, or both, the rising air through these openings will decrease the efficiency of the heating system by transferring warmed air into the attic.

Close these spaces at the basement and attic floor levels and considerable savings will be effected in heating bills.

Bookcase Lights

Since it is often difficult to get proper light on a large wall bookcase from a lamp, the installation of small tubular lights at the side of each shelf or a cove light above will prove to be a great convenience.

These lights will be particularly useful on winter days when room lamps need not be turned on to light the bookcase.

Shelves Over Sink

When modernizing the kitchen

add two or three shelves over the sink. These may be open or enclosed and will be a convenient location for soaps, scrubbing brushes, and other materials needed near the sink. These shelves may be painted a bright color which contrasts with the main color in the room.

SYNOPSIS
Captain Michael Andrews, attached to a British armored car division on the Eastern Front, is captured by Kurdish irregulars but rescued when the supposed leader of the Kurds turns out to be a mysterious British secret service agent who calls himself "Smith." While steering the Balkari, an Armenian tribe, to a place of safety across the mountains and away from the Kurds, Andrews battles with Smith when he sees the latter kill Cullen, an enemy spy, in cold blood. Andrews' leg is broken and he is sent to a British hospital in Cairo, where he falls in love with his nurse, Rosemary. When he asks her to marry him, she tells him that she is already married.

CHAPTER V
As Rosemary turned and started to run blindly from the balcony, he stopped her once more. "Sit here," he commanded, forcing her down on a bench. "I want to know all about this before I let you go. Where's your husband?" "I don't know," she sobbed. "Does that mean you've left him?" "No."

"Tell me you're better," he pleaded as he sat beside the divan on which she was resting.

"I was married just before the war," she answered huskily. "When it broke out, John was sent away on intelligence work. Since then I've had no word from him in three years. If I hadn't turned to nursing, I think I'd have gone mad. Then I got... sort of numb... about everything. But now... but now..." She looked at Andrews and bit her lip to stop it trembling. "You poor child. All his harshness gone, he looked at her tenderly. "Do you love him?" "I don't know," she answered, putting her hand to her head. "Did you love him?" "I don't know that either. I mean... I wonder if I can explain! I mean that John was so completely in love with me that my own feelings were sort of swamped in his. He's... a very strange person. I... oh, do you understand?" "I think so," he answered slowly. "Now, do you love me?" "Yes." Her voice was calm with assurance. "Has it struck you," he continued, "that perhaps... that perhaps..."

First of 5 Held For Insurance Murder Enters Plea of Guilty

In surprise move Monday Albert Vowels of Wyatt entered a plea of guilty to the insurance murder of E. P. McCutcheon July 3 when his case was called in the Mississippi county circuit court. Sentence was deferred by Judge Frank Kelly.

The plea was entered so quietly that most of the spectators who went to the courtroom for the trial left without learning the case's disposition. Their ignorance of the outcome was caused partly by the fact that it was first announced Vowels' hearing would be postponed indefinitely. After a short recess, however, the defendant's attorney entered a plea. Vowels was not called to testify and his lawyer did not elaborate on the action.

Vowels, who was the first of five defendants in the case to be heard, is proprietor of the Wyatt store where McCutcheon was last seen alive the night of the murder. Details of a confession he made after his arrest have never been made public. This week however, he was expected to be used as a state witness in the trials of Fred Mansker, Chester Brightman, a negro, and Bud Greese, set for Thursday.

The fifth man held, C. V. Williams, a Charleston insurance agent who sold policies to McCutcheon, was granted a change of venue Monday by Judge Kelly. His trial will be held in the Cape Girardeau county circuit court at Jackson during the January term. Judge Kelly will preside.

Although Vowels' confession was closely guarded, details of the killing were learned from Brightman's statement, in which he accused the Wyatt resident of striking McCutcheon first. Brightman said that Vowels and Mansker had offered him $250 to kill McCutcheon, telling him they would get $1000 for the crime. They put McCutcheon in a car and then drove to the place where his body was found later, the negro said.

There, according to Brightman, Vowels hit McCutcheon on the head with a hammer, making him fall to his knees. He then gave Brightman the hammer, telling him to strike McCutcheon, too. When he did, the 45-year-old levee worker fell to the ground.

Because Brightman felt blood on his hands, he walked to the front of the car to look at them with the aid of the headlights. Vowels made him return to the darkness, however, and then went behind the machine and threw the hammer away.

With the discovery of McCutcheon's body, officers heard reports that money had been offered for his murder; that Williams had sold McCutcheon two $2500 insurance policies, which named the victim's estate as beneficiary; and that several of those suspected of the killing had collected $200 to pay back premiums on the policy.

During a grand jury investigation of the crime, when McCutcheon's body was disinterred it was learned that the levee worker had not been killed by a shotgun fired at close range, as

Household Hints

After you have your chicken ready for roasting fasten a sheet of wax paper over the breast to prevent burning and drying while cooking.

To keep eggs from popping when frying add a teaspoon of flour to the grease in which they are fried.

Jellies and canned fruits should be stored in a cool, dry, dust-free place.

It is a normal condition for jellies to "weep" or get syrupy on the surface of the paraffin.

Ink spots can be removed from washable clothing by soaking in milk.

A small soap dish hung on the rim of the scrub bucket keeps the soap handy when scrubbing and saves the soap by keeping it out of the water.

Extra night gowns make good slip covers for dainty evening gowns hung away in the closet keeping all dust and dirt from the delicate materials.

The weekly papers and the small dailies of Democratic persuasion were inclined to claim credit for the endorsement of Major Stark as the Democratic choice for governor by the Jackson County organization. They reasoned, and with justice, that Major Stark was a small county man, not concerned with city politics in any way and that he had already received the endorsement of the strong weeklies and dailies throughout the state and had not received that of any of the city papers. That the pressure was so manifest that the city organizations concluded they had better get on the band wagon while the getting was good and save their faces. The idea was that Major Stark would be nominated whether the cities adopted his cause or not.—Independence Examiner.

The fact that the Children's Home Society of Missouri has five boys and girls of high school age in their receiving home at St. Louis is something of which the citizenry is often unaware. When we think of taking a child into our home to raise as our own, we generally picture a baby of three or under and forget that there are these older children waiting for the love and opportunities which only a real home can give. The home that opens its doors to them is blessed three-fold in return. In a household from which the children are gone, a mature man and woman find joy in the companionship and assistance which one of these older children bring in a home where there are younger children to guide and supervise; what a pleasure and help one of these older girls can be. Then, too, one is performing a real service to humanity by opening their hearts and homes to these fine children. Miss Frances Marie Harmon is Superintendent of the Home in Southeast Missouri. Inquiries concerning details concerning the children in the Home may be addressed to her at Sikeston.

A new definition for a bastard: The offspring of a mench.

The other evening we heard a woman ask what in the world would become of the younger generation. That's an easy one. They'll fall in love, get married, have children and trouble and all that sort of thing, and as they get older they will worry about what's to become of the younger generation.

Rev. W. W. Pierce, a Baptist preacher of Joplin, has some very strong things to say of Tom Pendergast of Kansas City, and Mr. Pendergast don't give a damn. We'll wager the Reverend is a Republican and that Pendergast does more charitable work every day than the preacher will do in a year.

An Arkansas pair appeared before a Justice of the Peace to get married. Outside were left two small children. The Justice asked who they belonged to when the woman said: "They are ours. The roads have been so bad we couldn't get here before to be married."

Another visit to the reservoir Thursday forenoon was made and most of the excavation is completed which leaves a powerful hole in the ground. The idea occurred to us that perhaps this was a very unwise move to build this reservoir as in due course of time perhaps the State Health Authorities might step in and condemn same as being dangerous to health and a breeding place of disease as it will be a great quantity of stagnant water and it is so far below sewer and water pipe levels that it cannot be drained out or cleaned. At that we may be all wet.

The great splash that was made through the newspapers to spend more than a million dollars to drain the swamp lands and drain-age ditches in Southeast Missouri has, up to date, only drained a few dollars out of the treasury.

WOMANS CLUB ENJOYS INTERESTING MEETING

The Sikeston Womans Club met at the home of Mrs. Harry Hart Tuesday afternoon, October 22, with Mesdames T. C. McClure and H. E. Reuber as co-hostesses. Mrs. M. M. Beck, Motion Picture chairman, gave a report on the pictures that will be shown at the theatre during the rest of the month with interesting comment on the types. A report on the two rummage sales that have been held recently for the benefit of the club and library revealed that they have been very remunerative.

The president gave some material in regard to a Santa Claus club. The purpose of this club is to collect used toys and repair them for distribution to the needy children of the city at Christmas. Plans were made to send letters to the parents whose names appear on the relief rolls, requesting them to call for toys for their children, and a committee consisting of Mrs. Art Swackmer, chairman, Mrs. James Matthews, Mrs. Billy Keith, Mrs. Harry Young and Mrs. Jim Pittman, was appointed to complete the plans.

A very interesting program was then given, with fifteen members of the sophomore English class, under the direction of Mrs. Geraldine Young, demonstrating parliamentary procedure. Mrs. Howard Dunaway then gave a paper on "First Aid in the Home."

Since refreshments are being served at the meetings this year, Mrs. Reuber has requested that members please call the hostess the day before the meeting, if possible, and notify her if they are not going to attend the meeting.

The next meeting of the club will be held Tuesday afternoon, November 5, at the home of Mrs. Randol Wilson with Mrs. J. L. Tanner and Mrs. Sayers Tanner assistant hostesses. Mrs. E. C. Matthews will be leaders for the afternoon.

THE NEW FORD V-8 FOR 1936

Why do we say The New Ford V-8 for 1936?

What is new about it?

Of course, the newest engine in the low-price car field is still the V-8 engine. Since Ford made it available to all car users (keeping it as economical as cars with fewer cylinders) the Ford V-8 has been the newest engine on the market, and remains the newest for 1936.

You may buy a car on minor "talking points"—some specially advertised feature "with the car thrown in"—but, after all, it is the engine you buy when you buy a car. Hence we put the engine first.

Other new points about the car make a long list.

Its lines are much more beautiful. The hood is longer and sweeps forward over the distinctive new radiator grille, giving the car a length and grace that are instantly impressive. The fenders are larger, with a wide flare. Horns are concealed behind circular grilles beneath the headlamps. New steel wheels.

Ford upholstery—always of sterling quality and excellent taste—is rich and enduring. The appointments of the car have a new touch of refinement. There is no question about the increased beauty of the Ford V-8 for 1936.

In more practical matters, many improvements have been made—Steering is made easier by a new steering gear ratio. The cooling system circulates 5½ gallons of water through a new, larger radiator. Natural thermosyphon action is assisted by two centrifugal water pumps. New style hood louvers permit a rapid air-flow around the engine.

Easier, quieter shifting of Ford gears—The gear shift lever now travels a shorter distance.

The two qualities you want in brakes—Brakes that stop the car with ease and certainty. Ford Super-Safety Brakes of the long-tested, fool-proof, mechanical design.

Safety—as always—in the electrically welded genuine steel body. Safety Glass all around at no extra cost. Hundreds have written grateful letters because this glass has protected the safety of their families.

A car you can drive without strain all day, if you like, in city or country. Steady, holds the road, responds to the driver's touch like a well-trained horse. You don't have to "push" or "fight" the Ford V-8—driver and car easily get on terms of good understanding with each other.

An engine has much to do with the roominess of a car. Very much indeed. A long engine uses up car space. The compact V-8 engine permits much of the ordinary engine space to be used by passengers.

It really is a great car in every way, this 1936 Ford V-8—the finest, safest, most dependable Ford car ever built. Now on display by Ford dealers.

AMENDED FARM ACT IS UNCONSTITUTIONAL U. S. COURT HOLDS

PEORIA, ILL., October 21.—farm mortgage law was held, in The amended Frazier - Lemke effort, by a two-judge Federal court today to be unconstitutional as the original act.

An opinion recorded by Federal Judge Earl Major, and concurred in by Federal Judge Charles P. Briggie, decided the revised statute passed by Congress last spring after the Supreme Court had ruled the first law unconstitutional, violated the fifth amendment and the first section of Article Four of the Federal constitution.

The fifth amendment protects property against seizure without due process of law and the other provision cited guarantees full faith and credit to state courts. Farm Credit Administration officials in Washington said the decision was the first they had encountered invalidating the measure. They and other Washington officials disclaimed any connection with the farm mortgage moratorium law and declined to comment on the local Federal Court's ruling. It was delivered in the case of William W. Young, Fulton County farmer, whose creditors contend the law contravened the federal charter.

Judges Major and Briggie declared the recent amendment did not comply with the Supreme Court's decision in the Radford case because it does not permit the mortgage holder to determine the time of the sale of the property nor give him possession during the pendency of the bankruptcy proceedings. The Radford case from the Louisville, Ky., jurisdiction brought the adverse decision of the high court on the original law.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

In memory of Brother A. E. Shankle, who died October 7, 1935.

Once again a Brother Mason, having completed designs written for him on life's trestle board, has passed through the portals of Eternity and entered the Grand Lodge of the New Jerusalem, and hath received his reward, the white stone with the new name written thereon.

And Whereas, the all-wise and merciful Master of the universe has called from labor to refreshment our beloved and respected brother, he having been a true and faithful member of our beloved Order, therefore be it

Resolved, that Sikeston Lodge No. 310, A. F. & A. M., of Sikeston, Missouri, in testimony of its loss, drape its Charter in mourning for thirty days, and that we tender to the family of our deceased brother our sincere condolence in their deep affliction, and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family.

MISSOURI BLANTONS COOPERATION IN PUBLICATION OF BI-WEEKLY

Time and the call of more verdant fields have reduced the statement "Blanton and Sons" insofar as the Sikeston (Mo.) Twice-a-Week Standard is concerned to merely Blanton and son.

There was a time when the semi-weekly publication was edited and printed by the Blanton family. Charles, Sr., the editor had left the United States treasury department in a political turnover. With the aid of a handful of financial backers he founded the Standard. Prominent in the business office was Mrs. C. L. Blanton, Sr. With never so much as a day in any school of journalism, she edited copy, read proof, wrote society and personal items and guarded the check book.

In turn the Blanton boys reached high school age and served on the staff of the paper or in the shop. Harry has since gone on to other duties. He now is U. S. district attorney at St. Louis. Milton, also trained in the newspaper office, is an instructor at Georgia Tech. Ben dropped his blue pencil and his subscription book and now is an engineer with the public service commission of Missouri. David, the youngest, who also helped get out the Standard, since has been graduated from the University of Missouri school of law and from Harvard and now has

These illustrations show wrong and right ways for lighting an easy chair. The lamp above is of the decorative type and is not designed for reading. At right is shown an approved type that enables the reader to relax and enjoy real comfort.

By Jean Prentice

WHEN you read, do you ever have to poke your nose under the very tip of the lamp shade to get enough light? If you do, you're not only uncomfortable, but are risking serious eyestrain, as well.

And those tell-tale wrinkles that come from squinting, aren't they a rather heavy penalty to pay for misuse of light and abuse of the eyes?

Lamp Design Important

The illustration at upper left shows just what I mean. The reader literally has to reach over in her chair to get enough light by which to see. Or, if she sits naturally, she doesn't get sufficient illumination. That is because the lamp she is using is of the decorative type, and was not designed to provide light for reading believe a low end-table. It might serve the purpose if the end-table were 30" high, thus raising the height of the lamp; or if the lamp itself were 18 or 22 inches tall, and equipped with two 60-watt bulbs.

Proper Light Aids Comfort

Now take a look at the upper right illustration. Isn't the difference in physical comfort readily apparent? Of course. Here we have the same woman, perfectly relaxed, and not having to cramp her abdominal muscles or strain her eyes. You will notice that the lamp is placed on an even line with the back of the chair, so that even when the reader looks up to talk with others in the room, the light doesn't glare into her eyes, or in theirs.

A nice feature about this type of floor lamp, which is just about ideal for use beside an easy chair, is that it provides indirect as well as direct lighting. The softening quantity of the indirect portion provides a gentle scattering of light throughout the room, making paper or magazine easier to concentrate upon.

Avoid Harsh Contrasts

This is not the case with the lamp shown at left, which gives such a small circle of useful light that the rest of the room is in comparative darkness. You know, science warns against the possible danger to eyes from having harsh contrasts between the light on our books or papers and the surrounding area. For, it says, when the eyes look up from the page into the room—as they often do without our realizing it—they must "shift gears," so to speak; and this tends to tire them and induce strain.

ENTERS 53rd YEAR

The Christian Home Orphanage, Council Bluffs, Iowa, has entered its Fifty-third year of continuous service in behalf of homeless, destitute children and dependent aged women.

During this more than half a century, its doors have never been closed, day or night. It has been a refuge for thousands of little children from all parts of the country, who have been tenderly cared for, trained and educated, placed in fine private families, and who have become useful, honorable citizens. Such works as this are greatly needed in days like these, and their value to mankind cannot be estimated.

The Christian Home Orphanage, during all these years, has been carried on and built up to its present great size, by the voluntary contributions of good people from all sections of the country.

It has not been easy the past several years, although the appeals for help during these trying times have been more numerous and more urgent than ever before.

Now, with times and conditions growing better, the Home is earnestly and necessarily appealing to the people for funds to carry on its work during the winter months, and especially for gifts as liberal as possible for the annual Thanksgiving and Christmas offerings to the Home.

The work is really in great need of help, and whatever you can do will be appreciated. Please send all contributions to the Christian Home Orphanage, Council Bluffs, Iowa. The same will be duly acknowledged and credited in the official publication of the Institution, a copy of which will be mailed to you.

"HOW SOCIAL HEALTH INSURANCE WORKS"

By Frank J. Bruno, Department of Social Work, Washington University, St. Louis.

Social insurance differs from private insurance in that the state participates by laying down the conditions under which it shall operate, and also because it designates all who shall be included within the provisions of the act regardless of the beneficiaries' consent. In other words social insurance is both state insurance and compulsory.

It is insurance, however, in that it is possible to determine how many folks will be ill out of a given number of population, as out of every million, and therefore to collect in advance by premiums a reserve fund sufficient to meet the expense of the illnesses as they occur.

The premiums are ordinarily paid by three parties, the state, the employer and the employee, although any one or even two of them may drop out. For instance, in workmen's compensation which is a sort of illness insurance the premiums are paid only by the employer. The shade of the premium paid by each would vary greatly.

There is a general tendency, in America at least, in the discussion of such plans to decrease even to the point of elimination the contribution of the state, and to increase the contribution of the employer even to the point of having it absorb all the premium.

In the contemporary social insurance systems such as the world have, the income of any one of these groups is so small relative to what it is in this country that it is necessary to spread cost over all three participants—the worker, the employer and the state. But it may be possible in this country to place it on the employer without serious damage to industry.

When an employee is taken sick he has the right to choose his own physician, provided such physician has indicated his willingness to act in this capacity. On the report of the physician the man's eligibility to benefit is established. Usually he must have contributed to the scheme a certain length of time if contribution of the worker is required but otherwise no other questions are asked.

On the determination of illness he receives care from a physician of his choice. He may be sent to a hospital, he may receive nursing care. The cost of any medicines is provided and in addition he receives a certain percentage varying between fifty and seventy-five.

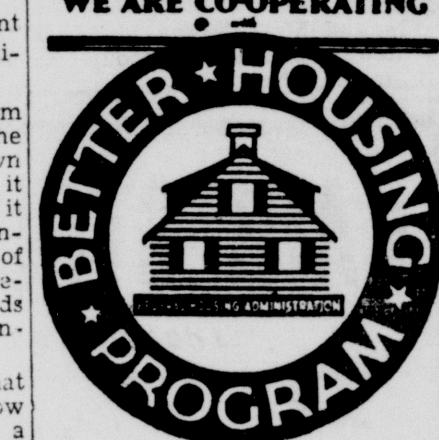

These benefits continue during the period in which his physician indicates that he is ill. At the close of that period benefits cease and the employee goes back to his job unencumbered by debts which otherwise have piled up incident to his illness and he does not return to work before medical advice indicates that he should; whereas he often now returns because he can't afford to remain idle any longer. The illness has not destroyed his savings, it has not impoverished his family and he can afford to take such care of himself as long as the physician indicates.

It is significant that no country which has ever adopted health insurance has given it up. It is one of the most criticized of the insurances before it is put into operation. By the testimony of those competent to have a judgment it is the most satisfactory of all the insurances when it is well established.

In a prebirthday anniversary interview which Queen Marie of Rumania granted the Associated Press—she will be 60 years old

Oce, 29—she deplored Italy's determination to subdue Ethiopia, and said this action might well prove to be the spark to set the whole world afire again.

Gazing out upon the Black Sea from her Turkish villa, Rumania's war-time Queen said: "Surely the efforts of the enlightened Emperor of Ethiopia to lift his country out of the bonds of slavery should win him the admiration and support of the whole world, not invasion and attack of his peaceful country. I fervently hoped that our Italian friends would find a more merciful way of settling their disputes with Ethiopia than using bombs and bullets against an innocent people. A war in Ethiopia seems all the more deplorable because it means that the white race will be pitted against the black race. As we are all children of the same God and made of the same flesh, can we not all live in peace together, whites and blacks alike?" Queen Marie declared that 30 long as money ruled the world and munitions-makers built their "hideous instruments of death and destruction," she feared no lasting peace could be achieved in the world.

FLY-AWAY PASTRY
Can you make pastry that literally flies away in the wind for sheer lightness and delicacy? "Vol-au-vent" is the name the French give to one of their glorified pastry-shells. It means "fly away in the wind" and really describes all the showcase pastries of the French, particularly the patty cases, "rissoles" and "bouchées".

In speaking of pastry, never let it be said that a French woman can do anything that an American woman can't. Yet they make this deliciously light, airy pastry easily and deftly, and it's a grace worth our cultivating. The pastry shell is like the velvet background in the jeweler's display. It sets off and enhances the entree or dessert in which it figures. It may be filled, of course, with either a hot creamed mixture such as chicken a la king, or with fresh fruits and whipped cream.

Delicate little pastry cases for your hot creamed mixture will give the simplest impromptu supper the air of a carefully-worked out bridge luncheon. And the beauty of the puff paste which is the foundation of these airy pastries is that it may be stored in your refrigerator well ahead of time, and is actually lighter and flakier after twelve to twenty-four hours' chilling in the refrigerator well ahead of time, and erator than when it was freshly made. Patty shells may be formed by baking on inverted muffin tins. They are usually made ahead of time, and thoroughly reheated in a moderate oven before filling.

Puff paste is richer than pie dough, the usual proportions being a pound of flour to a pound of shortening. The method of putting ingredients together is similar, except in the way of shortening is introduced to puff paste. Only two tablespoons of the washed butter or shortening called for is blended into the flour by cutting with knives or working with the finger tips. The rest is placed in the refrigerator and thoroughly chilled while the flour mixture is being divided and rolled out into two thin sheets. The remaining shortening is then taken from the refrigerator and rolled out in a similar sheet. It is placed between the two sheets of dough with a chilled rolling pin, allowing the fat to break through. When this paste has been rolled once or twice more, it is put in the refrigerator for about 15 minutes, then removed and rolled out again, then returned to the refrigerator, until the rolling-and-chilling process has been repeated about four times. The paste is then ready to be made into shells or a vol-au-vent, or stored in the refrigerator for future use.

Chilling, of course, plays such an important part in pastry making, not only puff-paste, but flaky pie-crust, that housewives purchasing an electric refrigerator more and more often consider the space needed for "refrigerator baking" as well as food storage space required; and the leading refrigerator manufacturer provides a china pastry set in super deluxe refrigerator models, including a deep covered bowl and a hollow rolling pin which may be filled with ice water.

Pie Pastry

- 1 1-2 cups flour.
- 1-4 cup cold water
- 1-2 cup shortening.
- 1-2 teaspoon salt.
- Sift flour, measure, and sift with salt. Cut in shortening with two spatulas until mixture is coarse and granular. Work water in lightly with a spatula until little balls of dough just hang together in one large ball. Turn 1-2 the pastry onto lightly floured board. Roll in sheet 1-8 inch thick Shape pastry to fit pie pan. Roll remainder for top crust.

Hot Water Pie Crust

- 1 1-2 cups flour
- 1-2 cup shortening
- 1-2 teaspoon salt
- 1-4 cup boiling water
- 1-2 teaspoon baking powder.
- Pour boiling water over shortening and beat until creamy. Sift in flour, salt and baking powder. Stir and roll out. This will make two crusts. Be sure to prick all over the bottom of the crust with a fork. This prevents blisters or bulging.

Puff Paste

- 2 cups sifted flour.
- 2 tablespoons lard
- 1 teaspoon salt
- Ice water
- 7-8 cup butter.
- Chill all ingredients and utensils thoroughly in refrigerator. Cut the lard into the flour, then add just enough ice water to hold the dough together. Place the dough on a slightly floured board and roll out. Dot with small pieces of butter, fold the two sides to the center, then fold at the center, so that there are four layers, then roll out. Dot with butter again and fold, and continue in this way until all the butter has been used. Chill in refrigerator for 24 hours.

M. U. TO COOPERATE IN PROGRAMS AT CCC CAMPS

Dr. Frederick A. Middlebush, president of the University, has announced that the Executive Board at its meeting last Monday approved a plan submitted by R. L. Davidson, Jr., of the University Extension Division in which it is hoped that the Federal government will cooperate with the University of Missouri in a new educational program in the CCC camps of the state.

The plan as presented by the University of Missouri is to appoint competent extension instructors in the CCC Camps of the state.

The plan as presented by the CCC camp of the state. Missouri University of Missouri is to appoint competent extension instructors in the CCC camps, which in most cases would be the regular CCC camp educational directors, to conduct extension courses in high school subjects in the camps.

The University Extension Division has never offered extension class work in high school subjects in the past but instead has offered high school subjects through correspondence work. The plan submitted by Mr. Davidson would entail a minimum of expense to both the University and the individual students and at the same time offer them ample opportunity to complete one unit of high school work during each enlistment period.

The students would be required to pay a small fee of two dollars to cover the cost of syllabi, grading papers, and administrative work entailed by the project.

The present program is subject to acceptance by the Federal government, and it is hoped that the CCC authorities will cooperate with the University of Missouri in offering accredited high school work to the students in these camps.

COMPANY INVESTIGATES MOREHOUSE ARSON CASE

The Rankin-Benedict Underwriting Company of Kansas City, which carried insurance on a Morehouse residence that was destroyed by fire late Sunday night, October 13, has sent a representative to Southeast Missouri to investigate the case.

Dade and Marshall Bryant, brothers who admitted burning the house, were sentenced a week ago on arson charges. Dade to three years in prison, and Marshall to two years in the Missouri training school for boys at Booneville. No information has been filed in the New Madrid county circuit court against Walter Hostler, who was to have been charged with conspiracy in the case after officers took a statement in which he admitted knowledge of the crime.

Dick Bryant, a brother of the two men sentenced and the occupant of the burned house, was said to have tipped highway patrolmen that the men planned to set fire to the dwelling. Because of his fear, he said, he moved some of his furniture from the building before it was burned. He and his family were not at home when the fire started, the night before the house was scheduled to be sold at a tax sale. Dade Bryant was the owner. The insurance company representative is attempting to learn if others besides the three men arrested were implicated in the crime.

READ ALL YOUR PAPER, NOT FRONT PAGE ALONE TO GET ALL THE NEWS

Readers of Missouri newspapers, printed in the state's large cities, are in error if they believe they can get all the news by reading the front page and sports. The metropolitan press has one "make-up" virtually all of them use, front page stories attacking

President Roosevelt or the New Deal, a war story and several other stories about the heart palpitations suffered by officials of big business concerns or financiers over the chaos being caused by the New Deal.

The real news now, for thinking people, is printed on their financial pages. Lots of it is front page stuff and would be so considered if the owners of the papers had the nation's interest in mind. From one issue of a Missouri metropolitan paper, in which the front page leaked with gloom over the terrible condition of the country, the writer took four items from the financial pages. Here they are, the first paragraph only being used:

NEW YORK—The forward march of the nation's business last week continued, affected only slightly by the staccato tones of African war drums.

DETROIT—If the drive further extension of distribution brings the results hoped for, the motor car industry in 1936 will assemble something in excess of 4,000,000 motor cars and trucks. It would mark the first year since 1929 that the figure has been reached.

CLEVELAND—Steele works operations staged a "vigorous rebound" of 2.5 points last week, stimulated by the momentum in the motor car industry.

WASHINGTON—The federal government has accumulated assets totaling $4,527,000,000 as pledges on loans to finance governmental and private enterprise over a period of years. — Bloomfield Vindicator.

The modern newspaper, large or small, is "contact man" for its community outside its field of publication. Every worthwhile citizen should be as anxious as the publisher himself to make each newspaper truly representative.—Western Publisher.

Consistent advertising is the merchant's pledge of quality: it is visible proof that he has faith enough in his goods to back them with his name.—Stolen.

If you know what you want the salesman will be less likely to sell you something you don't want. With solemnity a Coroner's jury assembled on a farm west of Las Vegas, Nev., to inquire into the death of Buster Wilson, 25. Before deliberations started, Buster made his appearance as an interested spectator. He explained he had only got a neck cut, falling against his automobile. The jury declined to bring a verdict.

With all its draw backs life is still a splendid adventure.

THE EDITOR
SAYS—

There will be a great many of us old folks badly disappointed in the old age assistance, because it looks like there will be but a few who will get it and that in mighty small helpings. And there will be no reason to fuss at the county boards because they have little or nothing to do with it. The members of the State Legislature are the ones to fuss because in the first place they failed to pass the two percent sales tax that would have produced sufficient revenue to have given the desired help to the old and needy, and second, they failed to provide the machinery to carry out the law as intended. Red tape in investigating the applications, the final appointing of a few politicians to visit the counties and their inability to examine more than two or three dozen applications per week, when in Scott county alone more than 600 applications have been filed. Many will probably die before their applications can be investigated by the one man when he has no time to look after. This inspector will again visit Scott county, November 18 for one week and being unable to pass so few each week of five days and working seven hours it will be next summer before he can possibly reach all of them. There is talk of calling an extra session of the Legislature to provide ways and means to take care of the aged and needy, if they do, work on your member to put him right.

In a way let me tell you why Tom Pendergast is a leader among men in Kansas City and Jackson County. While waiting at the Jackson County headquarters in that city to pay my respects to Mr. Pendergast there were assembled in a large room adjoining at least one hundred men waiting to receive aid from headquarters in order that they might secure food. Assistants, lieutenants, or aids, whatever you might wish to call them, were listening to these men and relieving their wants with orders given to secure food, clothing or fuel. Can you blame men and women voters of that city for being loyal to the organization that feeds them and doctors them? Where does this money come from? Contributions from men of wealth, from the city employees who give to the fund and from the city itself. This same way of aiding the down and out, the sick, the unemployed in Kansas City, is followed by the Shannon headquarters and the Casimer Welch headquarters. Thousands of men and women are fed by these leaders every year and on Thanksgiving and Christmas turkey dinners are served. Can you imagine anyone who has been aided by these leaders turning against them at election time when they are needed to keep the organization in power. Long may they be leaders in their city.

Rev. Collins of the colored Methodist church goes to Chicago next week to attend Conference of his church. The Standard hopes he will be returned to this post as he has proved to be a good man among his people and through his efforts saved their church from being sold under foreclosure. Grapevine information has come to us that white Republicans are buying themselves to try to prevent his return to this post because the Reverend has seen fit to espouse the cause of Democracy. There is precious little religion in the hearts of some people.

Seven local coal dealers are wondering why it is that trucks from Illinois can come into this city and sell coal when the local people pay license, and we are told allow a per cent to go to the fund of unemployed. We don't know. The local dealers are: The Energy Coal Co.; The Robinson Lumber Co.; Fahrenkopf, Wyatt, Pinnell, Jewell and Chaney.

An article printed elsewhere by Harry Zimmerman, a psychologist and character analyst, says "Human happiness must be built inside the human skull." We are not one of those things that he is, but we believe human happiness must be built within the human heart. It is the heart that governs the impulse of human beings and that within the skull is what directs these impulses. It is the heart that beats for those in distress, that gives you the signal of what is right and what is wrong. The soul of man is within the heart. It is the heart that responds and not the head. We have known people that had little in their heart and less in their skulls.

Marshall Gunter, an old offender, was given a fine by Judge Carter for being drunk and disorderly, with orders to be put on the street to work out his fine if it was not paid. Gunter refused to pay the fine or work it out. Then along comes Mayor Presnell and pardons him. If it had been a first offense and he had been puny, as the judge put it, perhaps it would have been all right, but he has been arrested often and if he had been sitting on his, and like cases, he would have paid the fine, worked it out, or been given nothing but bread and water until he was willing to perform. And if any one attempted to pass him food, they would have been thrown into the bowels of the bat cave along with the prisoners.

Woman Suffering Loss Of Memory Taken To Farmington Tuesday

An unidentified young woman who wandered into Dr. U. P. Haw's office in Benton Saturday was taken to the state hospital at Farmington Tuesday for treatment after repeated questioning failed to reveal information about her. She was believed suffering from amnesia.

In a room at the Benton courthouse where she was allowed to stay, the woman repeated several times the first names of people, evidently acquaintances, but she could not remember her own name. Frequently she said, "I didn't do anything. Why do you do me like this? I knew you were going to frame me." Assurance that she would not be harmed failed to quiet her. At times she cried, but ordinarily her face was expressionless. She refused to exercise, but only leaned against a wall of the room for a long time while she was questioned. She said she received $4.10 for picking cotton, but could not recall the places she had been.

The woman was let out of a northbound automobile at a Benton filling station by people who said they had given her a ride from near Sikeston while it was raining. Several times she had tried to get from the car while it was moving, they said.

She was well-dressed and appeared to be about 28 years old.

25 Attend District Meet of I. O. O. F. in Dexter

Twenty-Five members of the Sikeston I. O. O. F. chapter went to Dexter last night to attend a district of Southeast Missouri lodges. Thirty-one groups of six districts were represented.

Ben Weidel, secretary of the St. Louis grand lodge, was the principal speaker. Members of the Sikeston degree staff, headed by E. H. Smith, conferred degrees on candidates, including Vernon Kelly and Theodore Kelly of Sikeston.

Other members of the lodge who attended were C. C. White, Wagner, W. J. Bennett, Norman Bennett, Harry Mason, Elza Lepley, Milburn Taylor, C. W. Smoot, William Vinson, Walter Hughes, Orville Calhoun, R. S. Coleman, W. F. Beasley, Charles Bethune, Frank Fettingler, Edward Swan, J. W. Whitwell, William Warren, A. M. Jackson, Hardy Williams, Franklin Sneed, and Arthur Odell.

Bulldogs To Play Red Devils Here Tonight

The Bulldogs will probably meet a team more difficult to overcome than the Matthews Pirates when the Chaffee Red Devils come here tonight (Friday) for a game on the athletic field.

The Red Devils have won only one match this year, defeating Kennett 30 to 0 and losing to Jackson, Dexter, Charleston, and Perryville. Compared with the Matthews defeat by the Blue Jays of 27 to 0, Chaffee's defeat by the same opponents 19 to 6 indicates that it is a stronger team than the New Madrid county squad.

Coach W. E. Mahew and Coach Zahn Wells of Chaffee were both trained at the Murray State college at Murray, Ky.

The Red Devils' average weight of 155 is ten pounds higher than the Bulldogs'. Coach Wells' probable starting lineup will consist of Aubuchon, fullback, 160 pounds; Biernert, quarterback, 135; Billis, right end, 162; Brockmeyer, left tackle, 150; Johnstone, center, 130; K. Brazel, halfback, 145; Briggs, left guard, 189; Mouser, right tackle, 172; Papin, left end, 125; Standfield, halfback, 156; and Shuley, right guard, 145.

The game, the last of the home matches until the Blue Jays come here on Thanksgiving, will start at 7:30. Admission will be 25 cents.

Little River Drainage District To File Tax Suits

Cape Girardeau, Oct. 24.—The agreement made between the Board of Supervisors of The Little River Drainage District and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, when the latter loaned the district funds with which to retire its outstanding bonds, made it definitely imperative that the district collect its drainage tax assessments, district officials said today in announcing that suits on delinquent taxes are to be filed and prosecuted.

There has been surrendered bonds valued at $7,771,000, or 97 per cent of the outstanding bonded indebtedness of the district. Under the resolutions of the RFC the bondholders will eventually receive $297 on each bond of $300 value. This arrangement has met with good response, but as yet there are left bonds amounting to $69,000, owners of which are unknown, $26,000, in estates and not immediately available, and only $136,000 in bonds whose owners have been informed of the plan, but who have not availed themselves of the RFC offer.

As the money loaned to the district by the RFC must be paid back, together with interest, it is incumbent on the district to collect its drainage assessments, it was pointed out, and while the payment of taxes for the year 1934 and delinquent assessments for 1935 and prior, as adjusted, were quite satisfactory, this does not relieve the district from undertaking to enforce collections on all unpaid assessments.

There has been prepared for filing in the various circuit courts in the counties served by the drainage district and in the Court of Common Pleas at Cape Girardeau, approximately 1000 suits for delinquent taxes. These suits, district officials said, will be prosecuted to conclusion at the earliest possible date.

Although these suits are being filed the privilege of paying delinquent assessments on adjusted rates offered to landowners still remains. Any such settlement, however, made after the filing of the suits will have added to it such costs and attorneys fees as are accrued.

The assessment for 1935 is on the same basis as for 1934. The same plan of payment on cleared and timbered lands will prevail. The assessment on land classed as cleared land will be paid on the basis of benefits assessed and on that class as timbered land at the rate of 10 cents per acre.

WINTER'S BASKETBALL SCHEDULE ANNOUNCED

Superintendent Roy V. Ellise announced Wednesday the Bulldogs' basketball schedule for this winter. All games will be double-headers.

The Schedule:

January 3—Hayti, here, pending.

January 10—at Morehouse.

January 17—Benton, here.

January 24—at Matthews.

January 31—Morehouse, here.

February 7—at Charleston.

February 14—Matthews, here.

LITTLE RIVER FILES 1000 SUITS FOR BACK TAXES

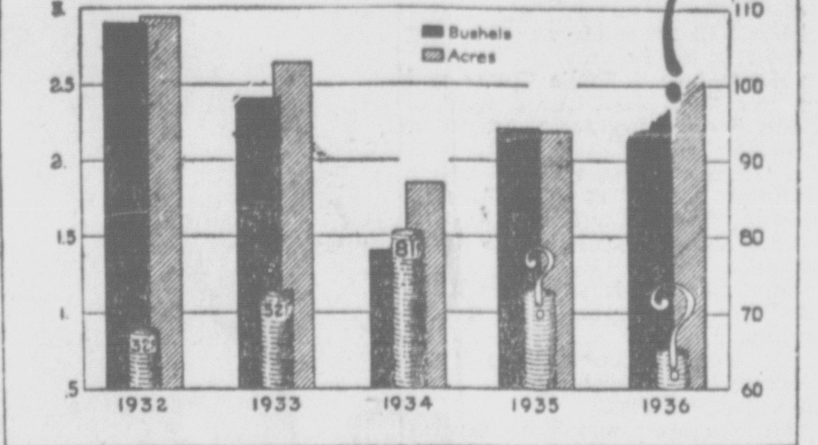

A thousand suits to collect delinquent drainage taxes due to the Little River drainage district are being filed in Southeast Missouri courts of counties in which the district's ditches are located, it was announced this week.

The Action is being taken because the district must collect delinquent tax money in order to pay its debt to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation on a loan granted some time ago to retire outstanding bonds. The district's agreement with the RFC left it responsible for collecting assessments.

Suits are for payment of delinquent assessments of 1933 and before.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph L. McGee of Matthews announce the birth Tuesday of a daughter whom they have named Jacqueline Sue.

Will Large Corn Supplies Mean Low Prices Again

ACREAGE planted has the most influence on corn production, except when a nation-wide drought reduces yield as in 1934. The effect of total production on the average farm price of corn will be felt as new corn becomes available this fall. The pile of coins representing farm price for the 1935 crop will be smaller than in 1934. Under normal weather conditions, acreage planted to corn in 1936 will determine total production and be a major influence on the price of corn in 1936 and 1937. In 1932 and 1933 an average of 106 million acres of corn were harvested. Average yields on an acreage of this size in 1936 will mean a corn harvest next year of nearly 2½ billion bushels.

Highway department engineers are this week gathering information concerning the typography and drainage of Malone avenue for use in detailed plans for the widening project which will be undertaken this winter with WPA funds.

According to specifications, the avenue will be widened ten feet from between Prairie street and the Frisco tracks. Concrete paving work will be done by WPA laborers under the supervision of highway engineers.

A contract for the project will probably be let within a few months so that widening may be completed by early spring.

CHAMBER CONSIDERS PUBLISHING DIRECTORY

Junior Chamber of Commerce members discussed the possibility of sponsoring publication of a new city directory when they met at dinner Tuesday.

The undertaking is considered a commendable one since no directory has been printed since the 1931 issue, which is now badly out-dated.

The chamber will also ask the cooperation of the city and the state highway department in having a stop sign erected on Tanner at North Kingshighway and a slow and S curve sign on North New Madrid near the Methodist church.

PARMA APPROVES BOND ISSUE FOR WATERWORKS

Approval of a large bond issue to help finance construction of a $38,000 waterworks system at Parma was given by voters at a special election held Tuesday. Two hundred and eighty-eight ballots for the issue and only twenty-five against it. The government has already approved granting $17,000 and lending $21,000 for the work. On Saturday Parma residents approved a bond issue for construction of a new $26,000 high school building with federal aid. The project has not yet been formally passed in Washington.

CHRIS PORTER TO MANAGE JOLIET SERVICE STATIONS

Chris Porter left Thursday morning for Joliet, Ill., where he will manage two new Martin Oil Company service stations.

Mr. Porter was formerly employed by the Martin Oil Company here. More recently he has been wholesale agent in Sikeston for the Cities Service Company, a position he resigned this week.

W. L. Hughes, a Dexter business man, has been appointed agent here for Cities Service.

Members of Mr. Porter's family will move to Joliet later.

Great Harpist To Play at Auditorium Tonight

Alberto Salvi, who is to play here tonight (Thursday) with an instrumental quartet, has risen steadily since he took his first informal lesson on the harp, which he later mastered so well that he has often been called the world's greatest living harpist.

Salvi received his first instruction on a diminutive harp made especially for him by his father, a noted harp maker of Venice, Italy. Advancing rapidly, he won the Royal scholarship prize, which assured him that all his future training would be secured at the expense of the Italian government. When he graduated with the highest honors, he was three years ahead of his class, and progressing still further, he composed, directed, and concertized until his name became synonymous with the beauties of the modern harp.

One writer has said of Salvi: "There are harpists and harpists but there is only one Alberto Salvi, who is admittedly the most phenomenal virtuoso of them all—an artist whose remarkable performance on the 'instrument of romance' is a sensation everywhere. Salvi has modernized the harp and brought it to a higher place of art; he extracts unexpected tones from it and offers a new vista of its possibilities. These qualifications, together with the surprising effect he achieves—full volume, ethereal pianissimo, and astounding variety—make all his appearances triumphs and re-engagements the rule."

"He has brought the harp to life. He has restored to supremacy the oldest of stringed instruments, the one that should reign over them all. And if, from his devotion the musical public understand the harp as it does the violin or the piano, life will owe him a debt that can never be repaid."

Salvi will play in the high school auditorium at 8 o'clock tonight (Thursday). With him will be four talented young men: Oscar Chansow, who plays the violin; Harold Newton, the viola; Ernest Guntermann, the flute; and Alfredo Mazzari, the cello.

BERTRAND COMMUNITY TO VOTE ON BOND ISSUE

No definite date has yet been set for a special election at which residents will vote on a proposed $11,000 bond issue for construction of a new consolidated school at Bertrand, John R. Gaty, a director of the new consolidated district, said Thursday morning.

Directors plan to send out election notices this week-end. The election will be held fifteen days after notices are received.

The Bertrand, Bement, and Armer schools were consolidated by residents who voted two-to-one for the change at a meeting October 15. A WPA project for building a new school building 100 feet square has been approved in Washington. The building will be constructed if the bond issue, which represents the sponsor's share of the undertaking, is endorsed by the community.

One Hurt In Accident Brought Home, Two Remain In Hospital

Mrs. Mildred Blake, known as Mildred Waters was brought here in the Albritton ambulance Tuesday afternoon from the St. Francis hospital in Cape Girardeau and taken to the home of her mother, Mrs. J. F. Waters, on Gladys street, where she is now recovering from bruises and a back injury sustained when the car she was driving north on Highway 61 left the road at a curve near Steele.

Mrs. Blake's companions, Miss Muriel Hurt and Miss Pat Murphy, will be confined in the hospital longer, Miss Hurt for an indefinite time.

Miss Hurt, the most severely injured, underwent an operation at 8 o'clock Monday night for a broken vertebra, which left her body paralyzed from the waist down. She was reported resting Tuesday, but by then the condition of her legs was unchanged and surgeons were uncertain whether she would ever fully recover.

In addition, Miss Hurt suffered deep lacerations on her body. Twenty-seven stitches were required to close cuts on her face.

The skin on her nose and upper lip was split open and although her eyes were unimpaired, deep cuts surrounded them. Her teeth were knocked loose and she incurred a painful gash on the back of her head. Her body will be kept in a cast for many weeks.

Miss Murphy may be brought home within a week. She is receiving treatment for a broken shoulder, a broken collarbone, broken ribs, a possible broken jawbone, a severe cut on her left foot and lesser lacerations on her right hand and left cheek, blackened eyes, and bruises over her entire body.

Miss Hurt is a daughter of Mrs. Clara Hurt, who on September 23 was bound over to the Butler county circuit court after a preliminary hearing on perjury charges, filed when she refused to testify as expected at the hit-and-run driving murder trial of Arthur Jones in Poplar Bluff last summer. Miss Murphy is an adopted daughter of Mrs. Hurt.

Mrs. Blake's Plymouth coupe in which the three were riding Sunday was brought here the first of the week. It was damaged beyond repair.

Advocates Construction of Safe Automobiles

"Motoring safety, very much on the public mind, can be attained only in one way—the building of the safest possible cars by the manufacturer and the temperate use of their power and speed by the motorist."

This was the statement today of C. L. McCuen, Oldsmobile president and general manager, in discussing the important problem of traffic safety.

"The mere passage of laws is not the answer to the problems which concern us all so deeply," he said. "There must be a full measure of cooperation on the part of the man who makes the modern motor car and the man who drives it."

"The manufacturer must build into his product those important and proved safety devices which will aid a motorist in avoiding an accident. He must have brakes strong enough and sure enough to stop his car in the shortest possible time. He must enclose the passengers in his car in walls of steel, above, below and on all sides of them. He should add the further protection of safety glass. He must make his car easy to steer, easy to manipulate in any emergency."

"And the motorist must take full advantage of these safety devices. More than that, he should drive at all times with extreme caution, traveling at slower speeds at night than he does in the daytime."

"He must know what to do on all kinds of roads and in all kinds of traffic. He should realize that pedestrians cannot move as quickly as he is moving, and therefore should anticipate situations which might cause trouble."

"There are certain definite precautions, familiar to most motorists, to take when driving on icy streets, on gravel roads, in snow and sleet and rain. Periodical checking of brakes, tires, lights, horns, windshield wipers and steering apparatus should be made by every motorist. A defect in any of these might well cause an accident."

"No motorist deliberately invites an accident. But by failure to keep his car in condition, to abide by the traffic regulations of the state and city in which he lives, by forgetting for a brief moment his caution, he may well extend just such an invitation."

"The manufacturer is trying to do his part. Special engineers are assigned to test cars for their safety, to devise new ways to give added protection to the people who drive them."

"Each year finds more rigid frames, greater over all strength, more powerful and quicker acting brakes—a hundred and one things which mean additional safety to the men and women driving on the country's highways today."

"Through the cooperation of both the manufacturers and the drivers, the accident toll on the highways can be sharply diminished. It surely is worth the effort."

Kelso Tire Store Opens Offers New Credit Plan

A credit plan new to residents is being introduced at the Kelso Tire Store, which opened at 219 East Malone avenue Thursday morning.

Under the Kelso time payment plan, persons may buy merchandise without down payments and then apply money on their accounts as they are able. The plan is in effect for purchasers of tires, batteries, automobile heaters and radios, and accessories.

The "simple, easy plan," according to Kelso officials, "does away with complicated snoopy and credit investigations. You don't have to wait for a lot of double-checking. We believe you will agree with us and our customers that it is the easiest, simplest, most pleasant way you ever heard of to buy on time."

Since earlier in the week, workmen have been busy converting the Malone avenue room into quarters suitable for the Kelso Tire Store, constructing a partition, shelves and display racks.

The store, a branch of the Kelso Oil Company of Cape Girardeau, is equipped to carry a large complete stock. It will be managed by Elmer Deneke, who has long been a Kelso employee in Cape Girardeau. Mr. Deneke and his family will live here.

Washington Current Comment

The quiet days of Autumn have settled on Washington, but the Capital City rests amid a stillness that cannot be charged to the weather or the season of the year. The average resident of Washington sees the President seldom, yet the White House is just a building if it is known that the Chief Executive is not under its roof. Few places are more dismal than the halls of Congress when they no longer echo the rap of the presiding officer's gavel. Washington at present is merely a large and well ordered city, and is deprived of its usual prerogative of having something unusual to tell the world. To be sure, the Department of State is busy, and worried over problems arising out of the African War, the Treasury issues its reports, footed up in debits and credits so large as to be without meaning to the ordinary reader, and the NRA still groggy from the blow administered by the Supreme Court is occupied in finding some way in which it can be of use. That being granted, the oven nevertheless is cold and the dough lacks the quickening leaven of politics. Politicians come in for some hard words, yet all will agree that without their presence there exists an aching void. Secretly if not openly, everyone enjoys the excitement that goes with party contention.

The Republic of Panama has notified a New York bank that it will have to be excused for the time being from paying some money that it owes. One of the difficulties that face an organization of public international scope, such as the League of Nations or the World Court, is to find a common bond that will hold it together. Indebtedness to the United States should be a tie strong enough to answer that purpose, and perhaps Panama has qualified for a new and higher seat in the international conferences. On Main Street, the butcher, the baker and the candle-stick maker turn a cold and glassy eye on the village dead-beat, but such conduct is small and provincial. It seems that there has been established a new Order of the Golden Fleece, having honors to be conferred on anyone able to fleece Uncle Sam.

No Rattle Provided For The Baby Rattlesnakes

Strange as it may seem, the baby rattlesnake has no rattle. Biologists of the United States Department of Agriculture say the young rattler has a button on the end of its tail at birth. Within a few days it sheds its skin; in two months it sheds its skin again, and then the first ring of the rattle appears. Shortly after these snakes are born the last 7 or 8 vertebrae fuse into a solid bone, the "shaker", around which the rings of the rattle form.

When a rattler sheds, all the skin comes off entire, wrong side out—all except the part that covers the cap on the tail, which cannot come off because of the shape. This part of the skin however, is dislodged and moves backward to become an additional ring on the rattle. The rattling noise is made by these rings of dry skin jiggling around when the snake vibrates his shaker. The biologists say a snake seldom has more than 10 rings because the vibration at the tip is so great that the terminal rings wear out or are broken off.

Biologists do not believe lot of the notions about snakes. They say a rattler's years are not the same as the number of rings he has accumulated on his shaker. Normally one ring is added every time the skin is shed, and this is usually three times a year. But not all snakes are like in shedding. Some shed twice a year and some as many as four times.

Another thing, the biologists don't believe nature gave the rattlesnake his rattle as a warning device. They believe it is a call of use to them particularly in the breeding season. Anyway, it is an effective warning and saves the rattlers a lot of bother.

Wood Experts Drive Home Points About Using Nails

Valuable "tips" on the art of nailing woods together come from experts of the Forest Products Laboratory, Madison, Wis., according to the United States Forest Service, which maintains the laboratory in cooperation with the University of Wisconsin. Good nailing, they say, consists largely in selecting the right kind, size,

and number of nails and then using them properly.

Some points in the technique of good nailing are: Strength of a nailed joint depends on the frictional contact of the nail with the wood fibers. Nailed joints must resist two types of pressure. The first is direct, tending to withdraw the nail; the other, lateral, or sidewise. A nail's resistance to the latter pressure is greater, and depends upon the diameter of the nail and the kind of wood used. Tables have been made up showing the exact increase of resistance to lateral pressure provided by nails of various diameters.

A nail is long enough if about two-thirds of it goes into the board receiving the point. Splitting can be avoided by using a thin, blunt nail, or by blunting the end of a sharp nail and by boring a lead hole into the wood. The strength of nailed woods increases directly with the number of nails used. Good joints cannot be made with green woods that later dry out. Nails are more efficient when driven into the side grain of dry wood, then when driven into the end grain.

Tests show that the resistance of nails to withdrawal depends approximately on the area of contact with the wood. Resistance against withdrawal, point out the wood experts, depends on the surface condition of the nail. For temporary service, cement-coated nails give about 25 to 100 percent more holding power, but this effectiveness fall off in time. More permanent is the grip of those nails which have a pitted or etched surface.

TENANT FARMER KILLED BY UNKNOWN ASSAILANT

Ora D. Niswanger, 53-year-old tenant farmer of the Pinhook community in Mississippi county, was shot and killed instantly Monday night when an unknown attacker fired at him while he was eating dinner in his tent home.

Mrs. Niswanger, who was outside at the time caring for some chickens she had penned up for the night, rushed into the tent when she heard the shot. There she found her husband slumped over the table at which he was sitting, the left side of his face and his throat torn away. Officers said the shotgun had been pushed through a hole in the tent and fired at Niswanger's face.

Officers were unable to learn immediately a motive for the murder. A negro and another white man live near the couple, the negro in a tent 100 yards from the Niswangers' and the other, an uncle of Mrs. Niswanger, in a small house also near the tent.

The four lived on the Bill Knapp farm seven miles southeast of East Prairie.

HOUSING HINTS

Decorative Plaster

If you are building a new house or remodeling an old one, investigate the possibilities of decorative plaster over mantels.

Often a picture over the fireplace will overbalance the wall. An attractive design in relief left the same color as the remainder of the walls, will add interest to the space above the fireplace, but will not overemphasize it.

Many attractive designs are executed for this purpose. Among the interesting subjects used in a modern room was a relief map of the state in which the house was located.

Kitchen Closet

Add an appliance closet in the kitchen. Here all the smaller mechanical equipment—mixers, toasters, waffle irons, etc.—may be placed on shelves designed to accommodate them. On the door place a row of hooks and paste white labels above each one. The electric cords which fit each appliance may be hung there and the name of the appliance placed above it. This will prevent cords from becoming tangled, and they will be easy to locate.

Paint the interior of the closet a color which contrasts with the main kitchen wall color.

Selections of Trees

In selecting trees for planting about a residence, take care that those chosen combine the greatest natural beauty with a hardness and freedom from disease and insects pests in the location where they are to be planted.

The form of the tree should be appropriate for the position it is to occupy.

Native trees are usually advisable for the reason that they are known to flourish under the soil and climatic conditions of the region.

Prevent Heat Loss

In western-framed houses the studs are not stopped at each floor but run up through the full height of the house. If these spaces are open either to an unprotected attic or basement, or both, the rising air through these openings will decrease the efficiency of the heating system by transferring warmed air into the attic.

Close these spaces at the basement and attic floor levels and considerable savings will be effected in heating bills.

Bookcase Lights

Since it is often difficult to get proper light on a large wall bookcase from a lamp, the installation of small tubular lights at the side of each shelf or a cove light above will prove to be a great convenience.

Shelves Over Sink

When modernizing the kitchen

add two or three shelves over the sink. These may be open or enclosed and will be a convenient location for soaps, scrubbing brushes, and other materials needed near the sink. These shelves may be painted a bright color which contrasts with the main color in the room.

SYNOPSIS

Captain Michael Andrews, attached to a British armored car division on the Eastern Front, is captured by the Kurds. He is rescued by a Kurdish irregular leader of the Kurds turns out to be a mysterious British secret service agent who calls himself "Smith." While steering the Bahr, an Armenian tribe, to a place of safety across the mountains and away from the Kurds, Andrews battles with Smith when he sees the latter kill Cullen, an enemy spy, in cold blood. Andrews' leg is broken and he is sent to a British hospital in Cairo, where he falls in love with his nurse, Rosemary. When he asks her to marry him, she tells him that she is already married.

CHAPTER V

As Rosemary turned and started to run blindly from the balcony, he stopped her once more.

"Sit here," he commanded, forcing her down on a bench. "I want to know all about this before I let you go. Where's your husband?"

"I don't know," she sobbed.

"Does that mean you've left him?"

"No."

"Did he leave you?" The girl shook her head.

"Are you mad or am I? What is this nonsense?"

"I was married just before the war," she answered huskily.

"When it broke out, John was sent away on intelligence work. Since then I've had no word from him in three years. If I hadn't turned to nursing, I think I'd have gone mad. Then I got... sort of numb... about everything. But now... but now..."

"She looked at Andrews and bit her lip to stop it trembling.

"You poor child." All his harshness gone, he looked at her tenderly.

"Do you love him?"

"I don't know," she answered, putting her hand to her head.

"Did you love him?"

"I don't know that either. I mean... I wonder if I can explain? I mean that John was so completely in love with me that my own feelings were sort of swamped in his. He's... a very strange person. I... oh, do you understand?"

"I think so," he answered slowly.

"Now, do you love me?"

"Yes." Her voice was calm with assurance.

"Has it struck you," he continued till more slowly, "that perhaps you're... well, worrying yourself when there isn't any need?"

"You mean that John may be... may not be alive?"

"That's the first thing we must find out."

"But didn't I tell you that I've tried and tried?"

"Let me try. Maybe I can pull some wires." Then, seeing that she had begun to cry, he interrupted with gentle firmness. "Stop that. We're going back to the hospital now..."

But the next morning, just after Andrews had telephoned to assure her of his love and make an appointment for the evening, Rosemary received an important call from the matron.

Although he was clean shaven, except for a small mustache, and was dressed in the British uniform, he was the same man whom Michael Andrews had known as Smith in the Armenian desert.

"Rosemary," he said softly, an almost fanatical gleam in his eyes as he stepped forward to greet her. All the blood drained from the girl's face. She opened her mouth as if to speak, but no sound came forth. She put a hand to her forehead, swayed and would have fallen had not Stevenson leaped forward and caught her in his arms.

When Rosemary recovered she discovered that her husband had arranged for her to take leave at the hospital and had taken her to an apartment which he had rented.

"Tell me you're better," he pleaded as he sat beside the divan on which she was resting.

"Tell me you're better," he pleaded as he sat beside the divan on which she was resting. "Then I can stop reproaching myself for frightening you so."

"I'm sorry." She looked about her dully. "Where have you brought me?"

"This is our house that I got for you before I'd let myself see you; the house where we're going to forget we've been apart. I've got leave, my darling! Leave! Six whole ecstatic months of it, for both of us."

"But... but..." cried the girl, stirred from her apathy.

"Do you know what Hell is?" her husband rushed on. "Do you? It isn't a place where you sit on red fire while devils torture you. It isn't being cold or starving or dying from want of water. It isn't watching death creep up a mountain side. It isn't any of those things!... It's just being with-out you."

Rosemary did not answer. She was staring straight ahead. Then her eyes closed and she sank back onto the divan. Stevenson picked up her hands and carried them to his lips.

In the meantime Andrews had become worried when Rosemary did not keep her appointment with him. He hurried to the hospital and talked to one of the nurses who had been her best friend.

"It's awfully odd, Captain Andrews," Nurse Rowlands told him. "I can't make head nor tail of it. Rosemary's got special leave! Six months! And she's gone without saying good-bye to anyone."

"Gone?" Andrews was aghast and bewildered.

"Yes, and even Matron's orderly doesn't know anything."

"I see." His shoulders sagged. "Well... thanks awfully, nurse."

"She's sure to be writing to you," Nurse Rowlands assured him brightly as he turned and limped from the ward.

Personal And Society Items From Charleston

John E. Williams of Charleston, Mo., Grand Patriarch of the State Encampment of Odd Fellows, was the honoree of a dinner given by members of the Rebekah Lodge of Charleston on Thursday evening, 6 p. m., in their lodge room on South Franklin Street.

The dinner was served cafeteria style, from tables which were beautifully decorated in dahlias and roses. Some forty-five members were in attendance. Mr. West Gwaltney served as toastmaster.

...but, after all is said and done, it's the cigarette itself that counts

...the question is, does it suit you?

Now, when it comes to a cigarette that will suit you... you want to think whether it's mild, you want to think about the taste

That Chesterfields are milder and taste better is no accident...

The farmer who grows the tobacco, the warehouseman who sells it at auction to the highest bidder, every man who knows about leaf tobacco will tell you that it takes mild, ripe tobaccos to make a good cigarette.

In making Chesterfields we use mild ripe home-grown and Turkish tobaccos.

Outstanding... for mildness... for better taste

Mrs. Frank Ashby won the high score and Mrs. Lon Stader second high and both were awarded prizes. The game was played at five tables.

The Hallowe'en idea was carried out in the decorations and in the plate lunch which was served.

Miss Thelma Hunter of Jonesboro, Ark., was an out of town guest.

FIRST OF 5 HELD FOR INSURANCE MURDER ENTERS PLEA OF GUILTY

In surprise move Monday Albert Vowels of Wyatt entered a plea of guilty to the insurance murder of E. P. McCutcheon July 3 when his case was called in the Mississippi county circuit court. Sentence was deferred by Judge Frank Kelly.

The plea was entered so quietly that most of the spectators who went to the courtroom for the trial left without learning the case's disposition. Their ignorance of the outcome was caused partly by the fact that it was first announced Vowels' hearing would be postponed indefinitely. After a short recess, however, the defendant's attorney entered a plea.

Vowels was not called to testify and his lawyer did not elaborate on the action.

Vowels, who was the first of five defendants in the case to be heard, is proprietor of the Wyatt store where McCutcheon was last seen alive the night of the murder. Details of a confession he made after his arrest have never been made public. This week however, he was expected to be used as a state witness in the trials of Fred Mansker, Chester Brightman, a negro, and Bud Greese, set for Thursday.

The fifth man held, C. V. Williams, a Charleston insurance agent who sold policies to McCutcheon, was granted a change of venue Monday by Judge Kelly. His trial will be held in the Cape Girardeau county circuit court at Jackson during the January term. Judge Kelly will preside.

Although Vowels' confession was closely guarded, details of the killing were learned from Brightman's statement, in which he accused the Wyatt resident of striking McCutcheon first.

Brightman said that Vowels and Mansker had offered him $250 to kill McCutcheon, telling him they would get $1000 for the crime. They put McCutcheon in a car and then drove to the place where his body was found later, the negro said.

There, according to Brightman, Vowels hit McCutcheon on the head with a hammer, making him fall to his knees. He then gave Brightman the hammer, telling him to strike McCutcheon, too.

When he did, the 45-year-old levee worker fell to the ground.

Because Brightman felt blood on his hands, he walked to the front of the car to look at them with the aid of the headlights. Vowels made him return to the darkness, however, and then went behind the machine and threw the hammer away.

With the discovery of McCutcheon's body, officers heard reports that money had been offered for his murder; that Williams had sold McCutcheon two $2500 insurance policies, which named the victim's estate as beneficiary; and that several of those suspected of the killing had collected $200 to pay back premiums on the policy.

During a grand jury investigation of the crime, when McCutcheon's body was disinterred it was learned that the levee worker had not been killed by a shotgun fired at close range, as was at first believed, but that he had been beaten to death with a heavy instrument.

Soon after the five were arrested, Williams and Vowels were freed on bond, but when their bondsmen asked to be released they were returned to jail. Feeling about the case has been high in Mississippi county.

Household Hints

After you have your chicken ready for roasting fasten a sheet of wax paper over the breast to prevent burning and drying while cooking.

To keep eggs from popping when frying add a teaspoon of flour to the grease in which they are fried.

Jellies and canned fruits should be stored in a cool, dry, dust-free place.

It is a normal condition for jellies to "weep" or get syrupy on the surface of the paraffin.

Ink spots can be removed from washable clothing by soaking in milk.

A small soap dish hung on the rim of the scrub bucket keeps the soap handy when scrubbing and saves the soap by keeping it out of the water.

Extra night gowns make good slip covers for dainty evening gowns hung away in the closet keeping all dust and dirt from the delicate materials.

Rugs should not be placed cornerwise in a room.

To remove stains from tinware rub with a damp cloth dipped in baking soda.

A rich dough always absorbs more fat in frying than a plainer mixture.

Flour that has been allowed to get damp makes heavy cakes and puddings.

Never use soiled suds for washing colored clothes unless you expect them to be muddy looking.

The Poplar Bluff Chamber of Commerce and the Southeast Missouri newspapers have finally been heard by the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce and St. Louis Press, who are now attempting to suppress the graft enacted by constables and justices in Carondelet township on Highway 61. It is high time this sort of holdup was being squelched, and if not, then Southeast Missourians should go to St. Louis, then take the Illinois side of the river. We heard of a man who was held up by one of these highbinders who, after paying the graft, came back and ran the gauntlet again in order to let the grafter take him again, then jumped out of his car and gave the Reub such a beating that he had to be taken to a hospital, and the job was so thoroughly done that the man was unable to tell whether it was a white man or a negro who gave him justice, or whether it was a car

The weekly papers and the small dailies of Democratic persuasion were inclined to claim credit for the endorsement of Major Stark as the Democratic choice for governor by the Jackson County organization. They reasoned, and with justice, that Major Stark was a small county man, not concerned with city politics in any way and that he had already received the endorsement of the strong weeklies and dailies throughout the state and had not received that of any of the city papers. That the pressure was so manifest that the city organizations concluded they had better get on the band wagon while the getting was good and save their faces. The idea was that Major Stark would be nominated whether the cities adopted his cause or not.—Independence Examiner.

The fact that the Children's Home Society of Missouri has five boys and girls of high school age in their receiving home at St. Louis is something of which the citizenry is often unaware. When we think of taking a child into our home to raise as our own, we generally picture a baby of three or under and forget that there are these older children waiting for the love and opportunities which only a real home can give. The home that opens its doors to them is blessed three-fold in return. In a household from which the children are gone, a mature man and woman find joy in the companionship and assistance which one of these older children bring in a home where there are younger children to guide and supervise, what a pleasure and help one of these older girls can be. Then, too, one is performing a real service to humanity by opening their hearts and homes to these fine children. Miss Frances Marie Harman is Superintendent of the Home in Southeast Missouri. Inquiries concerning details concerning the children in the Home may be addressed to her at Sikeston.

A new definition for a bastard: "The offspring of a mench".

The other evening we heard a woman ask what in the world would become of the younger generation. That's an easy one. They'll fall in love, get married, have children and trouble and all that sort of thing, and as they get older they will worry about what's to become of the younger generation.

Rev. W. W. Pierce, a Baptist preacher of Joplin, has some very strong things to say of Tom Pendergast of Kansas City, and Mr. Pendergast don't give a damn. We'll wager the Reverend is a Republican and that Pendergast does more charitable work every day than the preacher will do in a year.

An Arkansas pair appeared before a Justice of the Peace to get married. Outside were left two small children. The Justice asked who they belonged to when the woman said: "They are ours. The roads have been so bad we couldn't get here before to be married."

Another visit to the reservoir Thursday forenoon was made and most of the excavation is completed which leaves a powerful hole in the ground. The idea occurred to us that perhaps this was a very unwise move to build this reservoir as in due course of time perhaps the State Health Authorities might step in and condemn same as being dangerous to health and a breeding place of disease as it will be a great quantity of stagnant water and it is so far below sewer and water pipe levels that it cannot be drained out or cleaned. At that we may be all wet.

The great splash that was made through the newspapers to spend more than a million dollars to drain the swamp lands and drainage ditches in Southeast Missouri has, up to date, only drained a few dollars out of the treasury.

WOMANS CLUB ENJOYS INTERESTING MEETING

The Sikeston Womens Club met at the home of Mrs. Harry Hart Tuesday afternoon, October 22, with Mesdames T. C. McClure and H. E. Reuber as co-hostesses. Mrs. M. M. Beck, Motion Picture chairman, gave a report on the pictures that will be shown at the theatre during the rest of the month with interesting comment on the types. A report on the two rummage sales that have been held recently for the benefit of the club and library revealed that they have been very remunerative.

The president gave some material in regard to a Santa Claus club. The purpose of this club is to collect used toys and repair them for distribution to the needy children of the city at Christmas. Plans were made to send letters to the parents whose names appear on the relief rolls, requesting them to call for toys for their children, and a committee consisting of Mrs. Art Swacker, chairman, Mrs. James Matthews, Mrs. Billy Keith, Mrs. Harry Young and Mrs. Jim Pitman, was appointed to complete the plans.

A very interesting program was then given, with fifteen members of the sophomore English class, under the direction of Mrs. Geraldine Young, demonstrating parliamentary procedure. Mrs. Howard Dunaway then gave a paper on "First Aid in the Home."

Since refreshments are being served at the meetings this year, Mrs. Reuber has requested that members please call the hostess the day before the meeting, if possible, and notify her if they are not going to attend the meeting.

The next meeting of the club will be held Tuesday afternoon, November 5, at the home of Mrs. Randol Wilson with Mrs. J. L. Tanner and Mrs. Sayers Tanner assistant hostesses. Mrs. E. C. Matthews will be leaders for the afternoon.

To Address M. E. Men's Class.

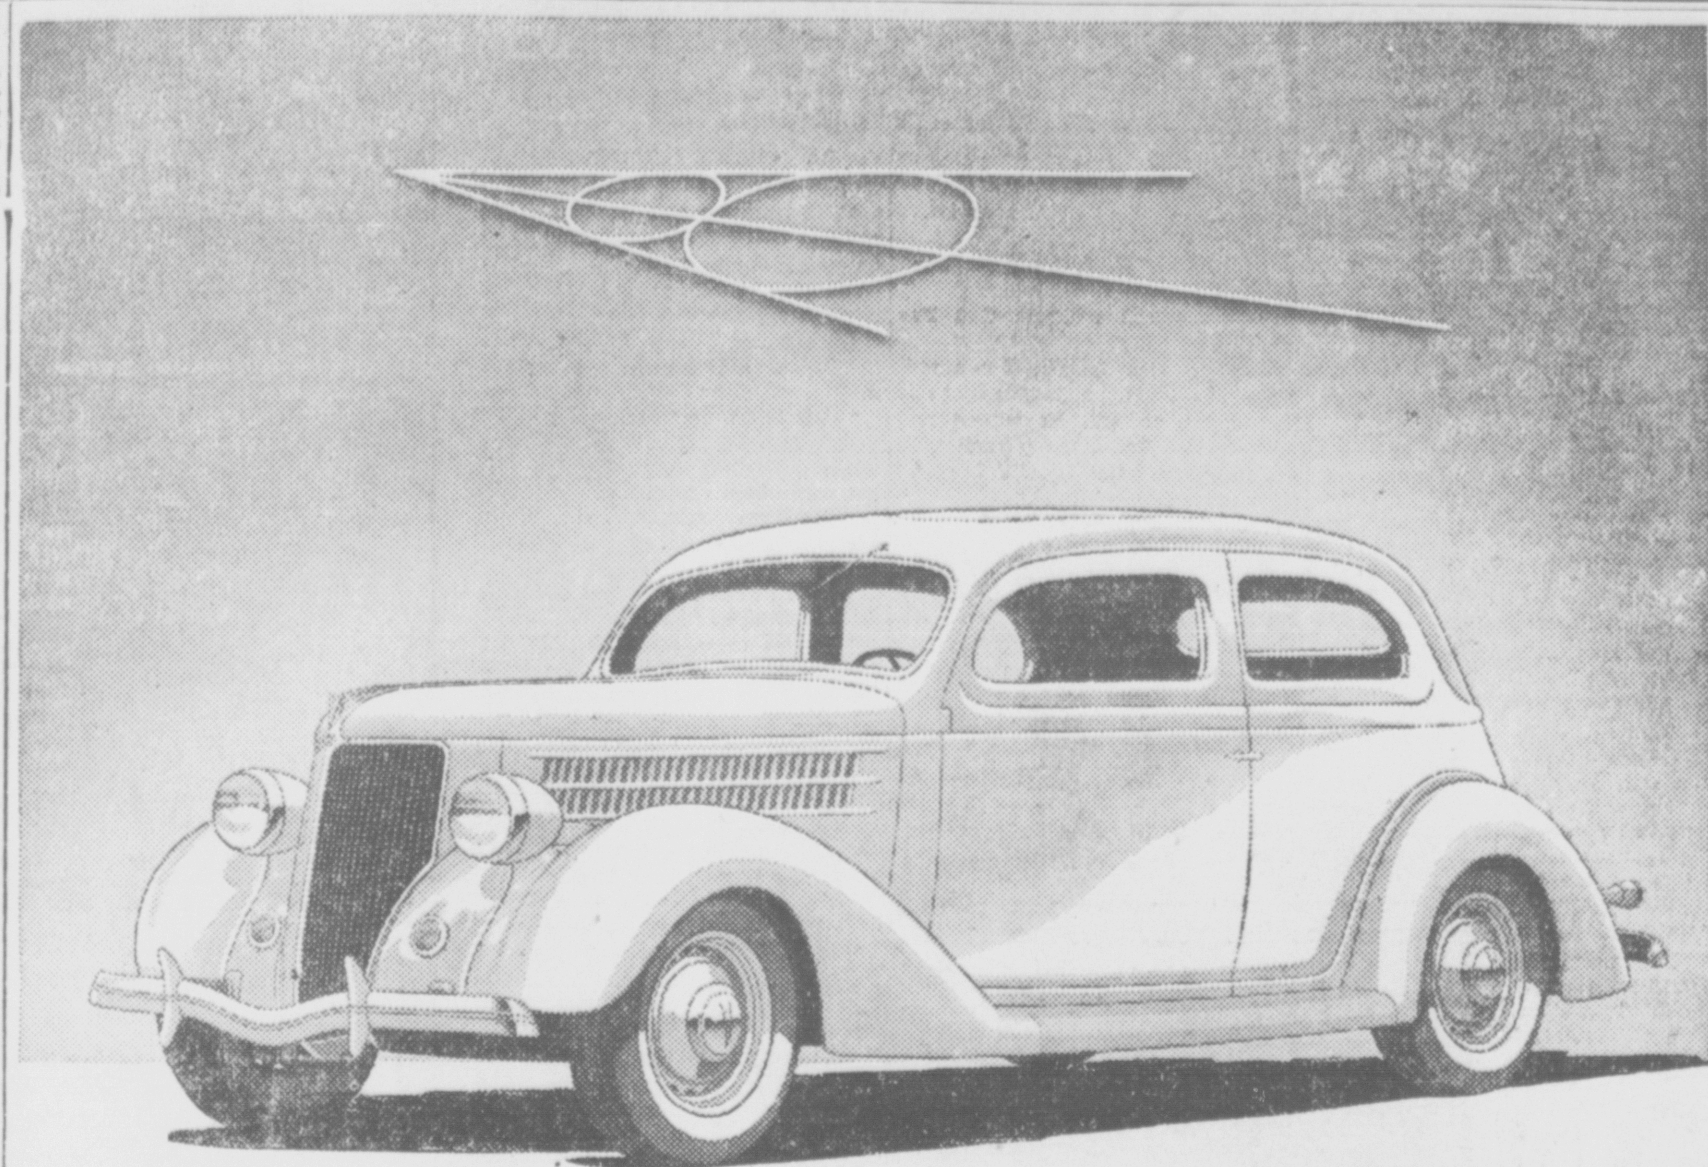

H. Harry Zimmerman, a psychologist and character analyst who came here last week, will speak to members of the men's Bible class of the Methodist church at their meeting Sunday morning.

THE NEW FORD V-8 FOR 1936

Why do we say The New Ford V-8 for 1936?

What is new about it?
Of course, the newest engine in the low-price car field is still the V-8 engine. Since Ford made it available to all car users (keeping it as economical as cars with fewer cylinders) the Ford V-8 has been the newest engine on the market, and remains the newest for 1936.

You may buy a car on minor "talking points"—some specially advertised feature "with the car thrown in"—but, after all, it is the engine you buy when you buy a car. Hence we put the engine first.

Other new points about the car make a long list.

Its lines are much more beautiful. The hood is longer and sweeps forward over the distinctive new radiator grille, giving the car a length and grace that are instantly impressive. The fenders are larger, with a wide flare. Horns are concealed behind circular grilles beneath the headlamps. New steel wheels.

Ford upholstery—always of sterling quality and excellent taste—is rich and enduring. The appointments of the car have a new touch of refinement. There is no question about the increased beauty of the Ford V-8 for 1936.

In more practical matters, many improvements have been made—Steering is made easier by a new steering gear ratio. The cooling system circulates 5½ gallons of water through a new, larger radiator. Natural thermosyphon action is assisted by two centrifugal water pumps. New style hood louvers permit a rapid air-flow around the engine.

Easier, quieter shifting of Ford gears—The gear shift lever now travels a shorter distance.

The two qualities you want in brakes—Brakes that stop the car with ease and certainty. Ford Super-Safety Brakes of the long-tested, fool-proof, mechanical design.

Safety—as always—in the electrically welded genuine steel body. Safety Glass all around at no extra cost. Hundreds have written grateful letters because this glass has protected the safety of their families.

A car you can drive without strain all day, if you like, in city or country. Steady, holds the road, responds to the driver's touch like a well-trained horse. You don't have to "push" or "fight" the Ford V-8—driver and car easily get on terms of good understanding with each other.

An engine has much to do with the roominess of a car. Very much indeed. A long engine uses up car space. The compact V-8 engine permits much of the ordinary engine space to be used by passengers.

It really is a great car in every way, this 1936 Ford V-8—the finest, safest, most dependable Ford car ever built. Now on display by Ford dealers.

HOUSE FURNISHINGS

A GENUINE FESTIVAL

Shoppers agree that our present showing of fall styles is just what it was advertised to be—a "Furniture Festival". Some of the most beautiful ensembles we have ever stocked are included in the display. No wonder prospective buyers are interested.

NOT ELSEWHERE IN SIKESTON

A city of this size always has a few housekeepers who appreciate real quality and beauty in genuine china dinner sets. No other store in Sikeston so far as we know carries imported dinner ware of the quality and beauty this new shipment affords. They come in 53-Piece sets—service for eight—and are in every way—right up to the minute. Prices run from $24.50 to $34.50.

MOORES STOVES ALWAYS PLEASE

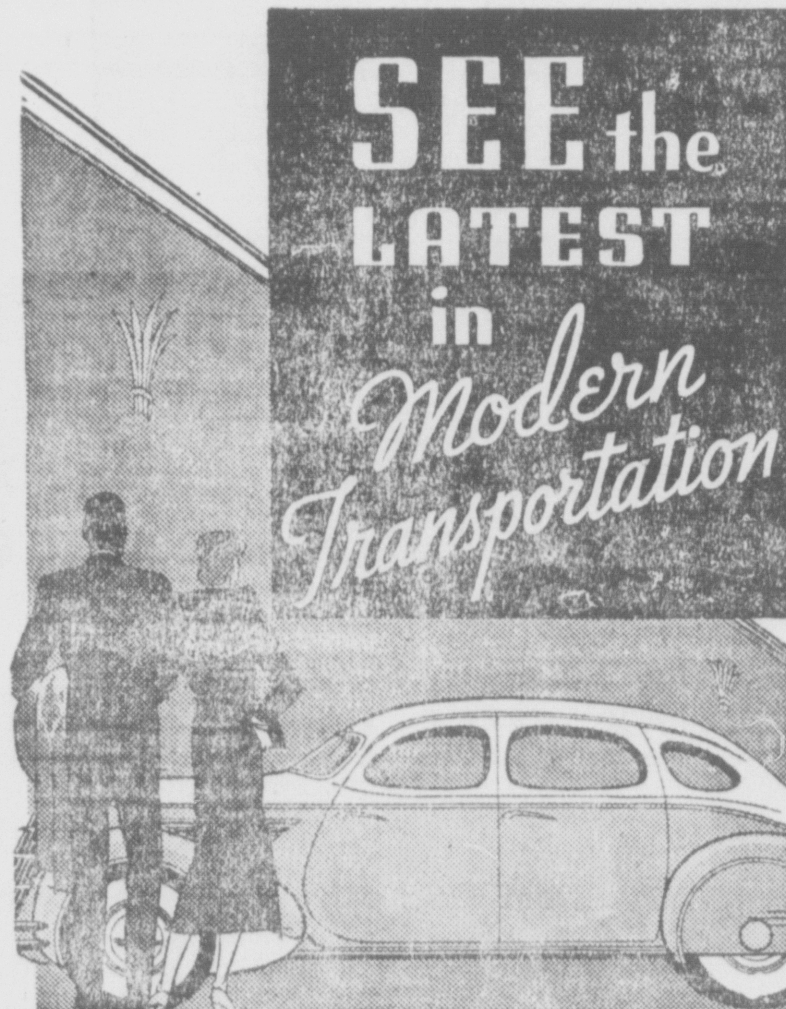

The Moore Company has just sent out a telegram to all dealers that fire pots in Moores Air Tight Heaters bear an unqualified guarantee for ten years. This is the most remarkable warranty we have heard of relative to heating stoves. Moore's Heaters, circulate the heat, keep the fire and are beautiful in appearance. They cost a few dollars more of course than off brand stoves, but savings in coal soon pays that difference.

ADMIRERS AND MORE ADMIRERES

A very simple display of new styles in 9x12 rugs in our show window has created more comment among judges of pretty rugs than any window trim our boys have arranged for a long time. These new ideas in floor coverings carry quality along with beauty and you'll find prices quite reasonable.

THE KEY NOTE

There are furniture ads everywhere, good, bad and indifferent—so many of them in fact that thousands that are deposited on front porches very promptly find their way to family waste baskets. Doubtless a good many of ours go that route. This is bad for us and frequently bad for our trade. The foundation phrase of our advertising policy is to "ADVERTISE WHAT WE HAVE AND ALWAYS HAVE WHAT WE ADVERTISE". If housekeepers were as sure of that as we are there would be but few of our circulars destroyed before being read.

AMENDED FARM ACT IS UNCONSTITUTIONAL U. S. COURT HOLDS

PEORIA, ILL., October 21.—farm mortgage law was held, in The amended Frazier - Lemke effort, by a two-judge Federal court today to be as unconstitutional as the original act.

An opinion recorded by Federal Judge Earl Major, and concurred in by Federal Judge Charles P. Briggie, decided the revised statute passed by Congress last spring after the Supreme Court had ruled the first law unconstitutional, violated the fifth amendment and the first section of Article Four of the Federal constitution.

The fifth amendment protects property against seizure without due process of law and the other provision cited guarantees full faith and credit to state courts.

Farm Credit Administration officials in Washington said the decision was the first they had encountered invalidating the measure. They and other Washington officials disclaimed any connection with the farm mortgage moratorium law and declined to comment on the local Federal Court's ruling. It was delivered in the case of William W. Young, Fulton County farmer, whose creditors contend the law contravened the federal charter.

Judges Major and Briggie declared the recent amendment did not comply with the Supreme Court's decision in the Radford case because it does not permit the mortgage holder to determine the time of the sale of the property nor give him possession during the pendency of the bankruptcy proceedings. The Radford case from the Louisville, Ky., jurisdiction brought the adverse decision of the high court on the original law.

Resolved, that Sikeston Lodge No. 310, A. F. & A. M., of Sikeston, Missouri, in testimony of its loss, drape its Charter in mourning for thirty days, and that we tender to the family of our deceased brother our sincere condolence in their deep affliction, and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family.

MISSOURI BLANTONS COOPERATION IN PUBLICATION OF BI-WEEKLY

Time and the call of more verdant fields have reduced the statement "Blanton and Sons" insofar as the Sikeston (Mo.) Twice-a-Week Standard is concerned to merely Blanton and son.

There was a time when the semi-weekly publication was edited and printed by the Blanton family. Charles, Sr., the editor had left the United States treasury department in a political turnover. With the aid of a handful of financial backers he founded the Standard. Prominent in the business office was Mrs. C. L. Blanton, Sr. With never so much as a day in any school of journalism, she edited copy, read proof, wrote society and personal items and guarded the check book.

In turn the Blanton boys reached high school age and served on the staff of the paper or in the shop. Harry has since gone on to other duties. He now is U. S. district attorney at St. Louis. Milton, also trained in the newspaper office, is an instructor at Georgia Tech. Ben dropped his blue pencil and his subscription book and now is an engineer with the public service commission of Missouri. David, the youngest, who also helped get out the Standard, since has been graduated from the University of Missouri school of law and from Harvard and now hes

These illustrations show wrong and right ways for lighting an easy chair. The lamp above is of the decorative type and is not designed for reading. At right is shown an approved type that enables the reader to relax and enjoy real comfort.

By Jean Prentice

WHEN you read, do you ever have to poke your nose under the very tip of the lamp shade to get enough light? If you do, you're not only uncomfortable, but are risking serious eyestrain, as well.

And those tell-tale wrinkles that come from squinting, aren't they a rather heavy penalty to pay for misuse of light and abuse of the eyes?

Lamp Design Important

The illustration at upper left shows just what I mean. The reader literally has to reach over in her chair to get enough light by which to see. Or, if she sits naturally, she doesn't get sufficient illumination. That is because the lamp she is using is of the decorative type, and was not designed to provide light for reading beside a low end-table. It might serve the purpose if the end-table were 30" high, thus raising the height of the lamp; or if the lamp itself were 18 or 22 inches tall, and equipped with two 60-watt bulbs.

Proper Light Aids Comfort

Now take a look at the upper right illustration. Isn't the difference in physical comfort readily apparent? Of course. Here we have the same woman, perfectly relaxed, and not having to cramp her abdominal muscles or strain her eyes. You will notice that the lamp is placed on an even line with the back of the chair, so that even when the reader looks up to talk with others in the room, the light doesn't glare into her eyes, or in their's.

A nice feature about this type of floor lamp, which is just about ideal for use beside an easy chair, is that it provides indirect as well as direct lighting. The softening quantity of the indirect portion provides a gentle scattering of light throughout the room, making paper or magazine easier to concentrate upon.

Avoid Harsh Contrasts

This is not the case with the lamp shown at left, which gives such a small circle of useful light that the rest of the room is in comparative darkness. You know, science warns against the possible danger to eyes from having harsh contrasts between the light on our books or papers and the surrounding area. For, it says, when the eyes look up from the page into the room—as they often do without our realizing it—they must "shift gears," so to speak; and this tends to tire them and induce strain.

ENTER 53rd YEAR

The Christian Home Orphanage, Council Bluffs, Iowa, has entered its Fifty-third year of continuous service in behalf of homeless, destitute children and dependent aged women.

During this more than half a century, its doors have never been closed, day or night. It has been a refuge for thousands of little children from all parts of the country, who have been tenderly cared for, trained and educated, placed in fine private families, and who have become useful, honorable citizens. Such works as this are greatly needed in days like these, and their value to mankind cannot be estimated.

The Christian Home Orphanage, during all these years, has been carried on and built up to its present great size, by the voluntary contributions of good people from all sections of the country.

It has not been easy the past several years, although the appeals for help during these trying times have been more numerous and more urgent than ever before.

Now, with times and conditions growing better, the Home is earnestly and necessarily appealing to the people for funds to carry on its work during the winter months, and especially for gifts as liberal as possible for the annual Thanksgiving and Christmas offerings to the Home.

The work is really in great need of help, and whatever you can do will be appreciated. Please send all contributions to tribulation of the state, and to increase the contribution of the employer even to the point of having it absorb all the premium.

Sikeston Standard, $2.00 a year

In the contemporary social insurance systems such as most of the other nations of the world have, the income of any one of these groups is so small relative to what it is in this country that it is necessary to spread cost over all three participants—the worker, the employer and the state. But it may be possible in this country to place it on the employer without serious damage to industry.

When an employee is taken sick he has the right to choose his own physician, provided such physician has indicated his willingness to act in this capacity. On the report of the physician the man's eligibility to benefit is established. Usually he must have contributed to the scheme a certain length of time if contribution of the worker is required but otherwise no other questions are asked.

On the determination of illness he receives care from a physician of his choice. He may be sent to a hospital, he may receive nursing care. The cost of any medicines is provided and in addition he receives a certain percentage varying between fifty and seventy-five.

These benefits continue during the period in which his physician indicates that he is ill. At the close of that period benefits cease and the employee goes back to his job unencumbered by debts which otherwise have piled up incident to his illness and he does not return to work before medical advice indicates that he should; whereas he often now returns because he can't afford to remain idle any longer. The illness has not destroyed his savings, it has not impoverished his family and he can afford to take such care of himself as long as the physician indicates.

It is significant that no country which has ever adopted health insurance has given it up. It is one of the most criticized of the insurances before it is put into operation. By the testimony of those competent to have a judgement it is the most satisfactory of all the insurances when it is well established.

In a prebirthday anniversary interview which Queen Marie of Rumania granted the Associated Press—she will be 60 years old Oct. 29—she deplored Italy's determination to subdue Ethiopia, and said this action might well prove to be the spark to set the whole world afire again.

Gazing upon the Black Sea from her Turkish villa, Rumania's war-time Queen said: "Surely the efforts of the enlightened Emperor of Ethiopia to lift his country out of the bonds of slavery should win him the admiration and support of the whole world, not invasion and attack of his peaceful country. I fervently hoped that our Italian friends would find a more merciful way of settling their disputes with Ethiopia than using bombs and bullets against an innocent people. A war in Ethiopia seems all the more deplorable because it means that the white race will be pitted against the black race. As we are all children of the same God and made of the same flesh, can we not all live in peace together, whites and blacks alike?"

Queen Marie declared that so long as money ruled the world and munitions-makers built their "hideous instruments of death and destruction," she feared no lasting peace could be achieved in the world.

FLY-AWAY PASTRY

Can you make pastry that literally flies away in the wind for sheer lightness and delicacy?
"Vol-au-vent" is the name the French give to one of their glorified pastry-shells. It means "fly away in the wind" and really describes all the showcase pastries of the French, particularly the patty cases, "rissoles" and "bouchees".

In speaking of pastry, never let it be said that a French woman can do anything that an American woman can't. Yet they make this deliciously light, airy pastry easily and deftly, and it's a grace worth our cultivating. The pastry shell is like the velvet background of the jeweler's display. It sets off and enhances the entire or dessert in which it figures. It may be filled, of course, with either a hot creamed mixture such as chicken a la king, or with fresh fruits and whipped cream.

Delicate little pastry cases for your hot creamed mixture will give the simplest impromptu supper the air of a carefully-worked out bridge luncheon. And the beauty of the puff paste which is the foundation of these airy pastries is that it may be stored in your refrigerator well ahead of time, and is actually lighter and flakier after twelve to twenty-four hours' chilling in the refrigerator well ahead of time, and erater than when it was freshly made. Patty shells may be formed by baking on inverted muffin tins. They are usually made ahead of time, and thoroughly reheated in a moderate oven before filling.

Puff paste is richer than pie dough, the usual proportions being a pound of flour to a pound of shortening. The method of putting ingredients together is similar, except in the way of shortening is introduced to puff paste.
Only two tablespoons of the washed butter or shortening called for is blended into the flour
by cutting with knives or working with the finger tips. The rest is placed in the refrigerator and thoroughly chilled while the flour mixture is being divided and rolled out into two thin sheets. The remaining shortening is then taken from the refrigerator and rolled out in a similar sheet. It is placed between the two sheets of dough with a chilled rolling pin, allowing the fat to break through.
When this paste has been rolled once or twice more, it is put in the refrigerator for about 15 minutes, then removed and rolled out again, then returned to the refrigerator, until the rolling-and-chilling process has been repeated about four times. The paste is then ready to be made into shells or a vol-au-vent, or stored in the refrigerator for future use.

Chilling, of course, plays such an important part in pastry making, not only puff-paste, but flaky pie-crust, that housewives purchasing an electric refrigerator more and more often consider the space needed for "refrigerator baking" as well as food storage space required; and the leading refrigerator manufacturer provides a china pastry set in super deluxe refrigerator models, including a deep covered bowl and a hollow rolling pin which may be filled with ice water.

Pie Pastry

- 1-1/2 cups flour.
- 1-4 cup cold water
- 1-2 cup shortening.
- 1-2 teaspoon salt.

Sift flour, measure, and sift with salt. Cut in shortening with two spatulas until mixture is coarse and granular. Work water in lightly with a spatula until little balls of dough just hang together in one large ball. Turn 1-2 the pastry onto lightly floured board. Roll in sheet 1-8 inch thick Shape pastry to fit pie pan. Roll remainder for top crust.

Hot Water Pie Crust

- 1-1/2 cups flour
- 1-2 cup shortening
- 1-2 teaspoon salt
- 1-4 cup boiling water
- 1-2 teaspoon baking powder.

Pour boiling water over shortening and beat until creamy. Sift in flour, salt and baking powder.
Stir and roll out. This will make two crusts. Be sure to prick all over the bottom of the crust with a fork. This prevents blisters or bulging.

Puff Paste

- 2 cups sifted flour.
- 2 tablespoons lard
- 1 teaspoon salt
- Ice water
- 7-8 cup butter.

Chill all ingredients and utensils thoroughly in refrigerator.
Cut the lard into the flour, then add just enough ice water to hold the dough together. Place the dough on a slightly floured board and roll out. Dot with small pieces of butter, fold the two sides to the center, then fold at the center, so that there are four layers, then roll out. Dot with butter again and fold, and continue in this way until all the butter has been used. Chill in refrigerator for 24 hours.

CHARLESTON WINS OVER CARUTHERSVILLE, 25-6

leston, Blue Jays defeated Caruthersville, 25-6, for their first Southeast Missouri Conference victory.
In four games, while it was Caruthersville's first loss in three games.

yard line on a pass from H.
Crech.

Later in the first quarter, yards and a touchdown. The extra point try was blocked again.

No more scoring was done until the third quarter, when Reeves again circled left end, this time taking the ball 52 yards for a touchdown. In the fourth period, a pass, Hequembourg to Wallace, was good for 10 yards and a touchdown. A pass, Hequembourg to Hay was good for the extra point, making the score 25 to 6.

Charleston registered 14 first downs to 8 for Caruthersville. The Jays outgained the Tigers, 262 to 154, while they lost 14 to 6 for tempted 7 passes, completing 6 for 51 yards. The Tigers attempted 6, completing one for 4 yards.

Charleston intercepted 3 passes,
Caruthersville, 2.

Charleston was forced to punt
7 times for 164 yards, Caruthersville, 5 for 147. Charleston had one punt blocked. The game was played in the mud and rain fell during the entire game.

Officials for the game, Gore and Darrow, Cairo, Ill. Charleston plays the Kennett Indians,

M. U. TO COOPERATE IN PROGRAMS AT CCC CAMPS

Dr. Frederick A. Middlebush, president of the University, has announced that the Executive Board at its meeting last Monday approved a plan submitted by R. L. Davidson, Jr., of the University Extension Division in which it is hoped that the Federal government will cooperate with the University of Missouri in a new educational program in the CCC camps of the state.

The plan as presented by the University of Missouri is to appoint competent extension instructors in the CCC camps of the state.

The plan as presented by the CCC camp of the state Missouri
University of Missouri is to appoint competent extension instructors in the CCC camps, which in most cases would be the regular CCC camp educational directors, to conduct extension courses in high school subjects in the camps.

The University Extension Division has never offered extension class work in high school subjects in the past but instead has offered high school subjects through correspondence work.
The plan submitted by Mr. Davidson would entail a minimum of expense to both the University and the individual students and at the same time offer them ample opportunity to complete one unit of high school work during each enlistment period.

The students would be required to pay a small fee of two dollars to cover the cost of syllabi, grading papers, and administrative work entailed by the project.

The present program is subject to acceptance by the Federal government, and it is hoped that the CCC authorities will cooperate with the University of Missouri in offering accredited high school work to the students in these camps.

COMPANY INVESTIGATES MOREHOUSE ARSON CASE

The Rankin-Benedict Underwriting Company of Kansas City, which carried insurance on a Morehouse residence that was destroyed by fire late Sunday night, October 13, has sent a representative to Southeast Missouri to investigate the case.

Dade and Marshall Bryant, brothers who admitted burning the house, were sentenced a week ago on arson charges. Dade to three years in prison, and Marshall to two years in the Missouri training school for boys at Booneville. No information has been filed in the New Madrid county circuit court against Walter Hostler, who was to have been charged with conspiracy in the case after officers took a statement in which he admitted knowledge of the crime.

Dick Bryant, a brother of the two men sentenced and the occupant of the burned house, was said to have tipped highway patrolmen that the men planned to set fire to the dwelling. Because of his fear, he said, he moved some of his furniture from the building before it was burned. He and his family were not at home when the fire started, the night before the house was scheduled to be sold at a tax sale. Dade Bryant was the owner.

The insurance company representative is attempting to learn if others besides the three men arrested were implicated in the crime.

READ ALL YOUR PAPER, NOT FRONT PAGE ALONE TO GET ALL THE NEWS

Readers of Missouri newspapers, printed in the state's large cities, are in error if they believe they can get all the news by reading the front page and sports. The metropolitan press has one "make-up" virtually all of them use, front page stories attacking

President Roosevelt or the New Deal, a war story and several other stories about the heart palpitations suffered by officials of big business concerns or financiers over the chaos being caused by the New Deal.

The real news now, for thinking people, is printed on their financial pages. Lots of it is front page stuff and would be so considered if the owners of the papers had the nation's interest of the Republicans party's interest in mind. From one issue of a Missouri metropolitan paper, in which the front page leaked with gloom over the terrible condition of the country, the writer took four items from the financial pages. Here they are, the first paragraph only being used:

NEW YORK—The forward march of the nation's business last week continued, affected only slightly by the staccato tones of African war drums.

DETROIT—If the drive further extension of distribution brings the results hoped for, the motor car industry in 1936 will assemble something in excess of 4,000,000 motor cars and trucks. It would mark the first year since 1929 that the figure has been reached.

CLEVELAND—Steele works operations staged a "vigorous rebound" of 2.5 points last week, stimulated by the momentum in the motor car industry.

WASHINGTON—The federal government has accumulated assets totaling $4,527,000,000 as pledges on loans to finance governmental and private enterprise over a period of years. — Bloomfield Vindicator.

The modern newspaper, large or small, is "contact man" for its community outside its field of publication. Every worthwhile citizen should be as anxious as the publisher himself to make each newspaper truly representative.—Western Publisher.

Consistent advertising is the merchant's pledge of quality: it is a visible proof that he has faith enough in his goods to back them with his name.—Stolen.

If you know what you want the salesman will be less likely to sell you something you don't want. With solemnity a Coroner's jury assembled on a farm west of Las Vegas, Nev., to inquire into the death of Buster Wilson, 25. Before deliberations started, Buster made his appearance as an interested spectator. He explained he had only got a neck cut, falling against his automobile. "The jury declined to bring a verdict.

With all its draw backs life is still a splendid adventure.
